

House Leaders Try To Cut Projects for Deficit Financing

Loan Program Sidetracked In Crackdown

Washington — House leaders, faced with an immediate rise in the national debt ceiling, are cracking down on deficit financing on legislative programs which add to the government's already vast debt.

First result of the crackdown has been the sidetracking of the house rules committee of a bill calling for a $2 billion community public works loan program to be financed out of treasury borrowings.

The practice, commonly followed to finance programs calling for federal loans, by-passes the house appropriations committee. Instead of voting direct appropriations, congress authorizes the federal agency concerned to borrow the necessary funds from the treasury. The treasury in turn then must borrow the money, thereby increasing the public debt.

Debt Ceiling Issue. Concern over this form of public-debt financing has been heightened by word that Secretary of the Treasury Anderson is due to come before congress Monday to request another hike in the debt ceiling.

The legal debt limit, already raised temporarily to $280 billion, would go up to $288 billion if the treasury's request is granted.

This would place the debt ceiling at just $12 billion under the all-time high of $300 billion at which it was set in the latter part of World War II. The debt did not reach that figure, and the ceiling later was reduced to $275 billion.

Congress earlier this session authorized a temporary $5 billion increase to $280 billion.

According to word from the treasury, Anderson is expected to ask the house ways and means committee next Monday to raise the permanent debt limit $10 billion to $285 billion, plus an additional temporary increase of $3 billion.

The house rules committee yesterday refused to act on the community public works bill unless its treasury financing features were revised to make them subject to appropriations committee control.

Capehart Demands Probe of Ethics in Rep. Roosevelt Deals

Washington — Sen. Homer E. Capehart (R-Ind.) demanded today a broad-scale senate investigation of ethics involved in some Maryland business dealings by Rep. James Roosevelt (D-Calif.).

The house, he said, has been investigating White House aide Sherman Adams' dealings with industrialist Bernard Goldfine, and "what's good for the goose is good for the gander."

Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) presiding at a senate banking subcommittee hearing at which he held into the deaths of two Capemhart voiced the demand. Rural Edgerton children who announced he would ask the subcommittee to consider it. Sparkman set no date for this.

'Coons Camp In Chimney, Cops Called

Neenah — Not only do policemen protect human lives and property but once in a while they must do an outside service—such as removing five raccoons from a chimney.

When a raccoon was discovered in the fireplace at the Carlton Smith residence, 1205 E. Forest avenue, this morning, Durward Breaker, a Neenah policeman, and Alvin Monette, poundmaster were sent to remove the animal.

There wasn't just one to capture, but five raccoons—a mother and her four children—all snuggled in the chimney.

Breaker took a position inside the house to flush them up while Monette was on the roof to flush them down. A rope and chain were used without success, since the raccoons were sitting on the damper inside the chimney.

Finally, newspapers were burned in the fireplace and the smoke forced the animals out. One of the raccoons, instead of taking the easy way out via the roof, scooted down the chimney, through the fire, and out the front door.

Tipsy Drivers Also Charged With No Licenses to Drive

A West DePere man and a rural Green Bay man each were fined $100 for drunken driving and $25 for driving without a license in cases heard at Kaukauna and Seymour justice courts.

Roy Pomeroy, 54, West DePere, was arrested at 1 o'clock this morning by Kaukauna police on Lawe street and was fined this morning by Justice Oscar T. Jahns.

Richard Adrians, 34, route 2, Green Bay, was arrested last Friday near the county fairgrounds in Seymour and was fined by Justice R. C. Schultz Wednesday morning.

Rebel Leader Threatens to Delay Election

Says He Won't Permit Choice While Troops Occupy Lebanon

Beirut — Rebel leader Saeb Salam said today the rebels will not permit presidential elections to be held as long as President Camille Chamoun is in power and foreign troops are in Lebanon.

"There will not be any election next week," Salam said. His statement dealt a heavy blow to hopes for an early settlement of the Lebanese crisis. Parliament is scheduled to meet Thursday to elect a successor to Chamoun.

"The Lebanese revolution will not permit the holding of any presidential election in the shadow of tanks, planes and fleets of foreign troops," Salam told newsmen.

Agreement Vital. Salam did not explain how he intended to prevent the election, but it was generally assumed the election will not be held unless there is prior agreement between the government and the opposition on a compromise candidate.

Meanwhile, a U.S. Navy spokesman said no American planes have been shot down by anti-aircraft fire from Syria.

He was commenting on an announcement from Damascus yesterday that an unidentified jet fighter plane was shot down while intruding on the air space of the United Arab Republic. The Syrian announcement claimed the downed plane crashed and burned in Lebanese territory.

All was quiet with the U. S. Marines in Lebanon last night, a marine spokesman reported. On previous nights, U. S. troops have been harassed by rebel sniper fire, but the only fatality reported was a marine killed by one of his own sentries when he did not answer a challenge.

Khrushchev's Comment. The marines reported today that a 20-year-old leatherneck accidentally shot himself in the leg with a pistol. He was not identified.

In Cairo, an Egyptian editor who accompanied President Nasser on his secret flight to Moscow quoted Soviet Premier Khrushchev as declaring "Russians have weapons which could easily turn the U. S. Sixth fleet into coffins of molten steel for its sailors."

7 of Family Die in W. Virginia Flood

Spencer, W. Va. — Seven members of one family perished last night when a flash flood swept away their rural home on Grammy's creek near Newton, about 30 miles southeast of here.

The victims were the wife and six children—four girls and two boys—of John Willoughby, about 45. Willoughby was the only survivor. He was under sedation at a Spencer hospital and police were unable to question him.

The Roane county sheriff's office here said there were reports that Willoughby was away at work at the time. Other reports said Willoughby managed to grab a tree when the flood swamped the house and he managed to swim to safety.

Fund Voted Tops Total Asked by Ike

Senate Committee Favors $1.2 Billion Above Request

Washington — If the senate appropriations committee has its way, President Eisenhower will receive $1,200,000,000 more in defense money than he requested for the year that began July 1.

The committee yesterday approved a measure to provide $40,032,000,000 for defense department operations. This sum not only gives Eisenhower more than he sought, but tops by $1,600,000,000 the amount authorized in a house bill passed last month.

Some senators contend the administration isn't expanding the nation's defense program fast enough in the light of Russian scientific progress and the Middle East crisis.

Stresses Urgency. Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Texas), the senate's majority leader, told Secretary of Defense McElroy he was disappointed over what he described as a lack of grim urgency in the defense establishment.

"We must work today as though there would never be a tomorrow," said Johnson. Most of the increases approved by the appropriations committee would provide additional airpower.

An additional $108,700,000 was provided for 13 more long-range jet B52G bombers. The house had provided money for 39.

An item of $111,189,000 was earmarked for 30 additional KC135 jet tankers of the type that recently set new trans-ocean speed records. The house program had called for 26 new tankers.

Rebels Shoot Arrows With Modern Warheads

Beirut — A weapon of bygone wars—the bow and arrow—has come back into use in the Lebanese rebellion. But now it has a modern warhead.

The rebels are shooting cone-shaped dynamite charges into government positions with ordinary bows.

The unorthodox weapon was displayed by a rebel officer. A dynamite charge was attached to a heavy arrow. As soon as the fuse is lit, the arrow aims the arrow on a steep trajectory, timing it to explode just before hitting the ground up to 100 yards away.

Security Council to Arrange for Session

UN Quarters Think Khrushchev Will Accept Ike's Proposal

United Nations — West-end sources said today the U.N. Security council probably will be called into session early next week to work out arrangements for a summit meeting here.

These quarters said they have been given the definite impression that the Soviet Union will accept President Eisenhower's reported proposal that such details as time, place and participants be settled through U.N. channels.

Members of the 11-nation council are keeping in close touch with the east-west exchanges and are ready to meet quickly if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev agrees to this procedure.

Would Avoid Clash. Secret consultations are going on now to settle the thorny issue of Iraqi representation on the council in advance of the summit meeting.

Qualified sources predicted today the outcome would be the seating of a representative of the new revolutionary regime on the 11-nation council.

U.N. diplomats are anxious to avoid any east-west ruckus the very outset of a summit meeting. This could happen if the council got bogged down in an argument over Iraqi representation.

Up to now the council has not decided whether Hashim Jawad, here to represent the revolutionary regime, should take the place of Abdul Majid Abbas, who has been occupying the seat.

The recovery unit resumed the search in the South Atlantic near Ascension island.

W. Whittemore, has ruled there was insufficient evidence at a series of hearings to support these charges.

But Whittemore did find that in the case of the Nassau Baptist church, East Williston, N.Y., the union illegally persuaded the union workmen to go on strike to stop non-union Endicott workers from installing the pews.

In that instance, the pastor, the Rev. Albert R. Siebert, got the non-union Endicott men to return to Indiana and had his general counsel of the NLRB appeal to the board.

Whittemore recommended recommending the carpenters union to agree in writing that it would not foment further strikes to prevent installation of Endicott products.

Whittemore's report also speaks about carpenters' "presence on a chapel construction it will act.

British, French Approve Note Before It Is Given To Ambassador Menshikov

Washington — President Eisenhower today dispatched a note to Soviet Premier Khrushchev insisting that arrangements for any U.N. summit conference on the Middle East crisis must be made by the security council at New York.

The note was written by Eisenhower and Dulles yesterday and cleared with British and French leaders early today. It was handed to Soviet Ambassador Mikhail A. Menshikov by Dulles at the state department a few minutes after 1 p.m. The White House arranged for its publication about an hour later. It was learned in advance, however, that the essence of the president's message was that it should be up to the security council itself to set the time and determine the composition and work out other plans for the meeting.

This decision came after Khrushchev's acceptance Wednesday of a British proposal to hold the meeting in the U.N. Security council.

Eisenhower thus slowed down the pell mell rush to the summit which Khrushchev seemed to set off a week ago with his demand for an immediate emergency meeting at Geneva. Eisenhower also was obviously intent upon having the security council fix the ground rules for the meeting. He and Dulles consider this preferable to any kind of a special 5-power conference outside the U.N. as originally suggested by Khrushchev.

Fight Rush Tactics. Informants said western leaders are determined to resist Khrushchev's rush tactics. They feel the tactics are intended to give an exaggerated impression of the peril of war.

The Americans and British believe if the impression spreads that there is a real war peril, they would have to defend themselves against charges of aggression for landing troops in the region.

Eisenhower, Macmillan and De Gaulle are said to believe a respite will show that U.S.-British intervention had a sobering effect. The allies also can use the time before the summit meeting to realign their sometimes divergent Middle East policies.

The western proposal that all summit arrangements be left to Hammarskjold has several advantages in the U. S. and British view.

It would make clear the summit conference is an operation of the United Nations and would make more correspondence with Moscow on details unnecessary.

Hammarskjold is in a position to address all members of the 11-nation council at the same time. Some delicate negotiations remain as to which nations shall attend. Khrushchev wants India and interested Arab nations represented, but he has not named the Arab countries.

Oppose Delays. British officials, meantime, reported the 15 Atlantic allies have dropped plans for a special meeting of foreign ministers in Paris next week to coordinate policies on summit talks. It was decided the permanent NATO council can handle the situation.

While the western diplomats talked, the Soviet press made a great show of impatience. "The world awaits a quick and definite reply," said the communist party newspaper Pravda as the western big three framed a note emphasizing they will not be rushed into a meeting. Khrushchev had suggested the meeting open Monday.

Pravda said the western newspapers were writing, "as

Vote Land for Expressway

State Fair May Move Away From Metropolitan Area

Milwaukee — The board of agriculture agreed today to offer 11 acres of the state fair grounds for the Milwaukee expressway — and in discussion hinted that movement of the fair out of the metropolitan area is a definite possibility.

"This represents the first step in the reorganization of the state fair operation," Donald N. McDowell, director of the department of agriculture, said. He added that he had reluctantly come to the conclusion that "we don't seem to be wanted here as an agricultural operation."

Feels Unwanted. "I am ready to throw in the sponge about maintaining the park as it now is," McDowell added. "The time has come for looking for some other approach. I don't believe we are wanted in this community."

Board members noted that the loss of 11 acres in parking space that now accommodates 1,100 automobiles, is a serious one for the fair. Hemmed in by residential and industrial areas, no other land is available.

The land requested by the expressway commission is in the north parking lot.

Kenneth Wallin of Shawano, chairman of the board, said that someone would have to come up with blueprints for other fairgrounds before long, because "the expressway is only a part of the trend."

Appropriations of About $70 Billion Drafted by House

Later Senate Actions Could Hike That Total by Substantial Amount

BY WILLIAM F. ARBOGAST

Washington — Except for some minor odds and ends and some compromises to be worked out with the senate, the house today closed the book on appropriation bills for 1958.

Based on house action alone where final passage has not been completed, the prospect is for total appropriations of about $70 billion for the year. But later senate actions could raise that total substantially, especially for defense and foreign aid.

The $70 billion figure would represent a cut of about $1,600,000,000 from President Eisenhower's request for $71,539,831,539 in new money. Last year congress cut nearly five billions from Eisenhower's requests.

Claims of Economy
On the basis of their record this year, members of the house and senate aren't likely to emphasize any claims of economy in this year's election campaigns.

The last of 20 regular, supplemental and deficiency bills sailed through the house Thursday by voice vote and went to the senate. It allots $1,218,155,000 for construction programs for the army, the navy and the air force at home and abroad. This is $511 million less than the president requested, with the senate still to act.

The senate appropriations committee voted to add $1,600,000,000 to funds the house already has voted for defense, with most of the extra money for more air power.

The $40,032,000,000 defense total is $1,200,000,000 more than Eisenhower asked. How much of it will be accepted by the senate—and by a later senate-house conference committee—remains to be determined.

The senate is expected also to increase amounts the house voted for foreign aid. The house cut $597 million off the total of an authorization bill, and Eisenhower is pushing for restoration of most of this amount.

Both the senate and the house have completed action on five supplemental and deficiency bills. Of the fifteen regular departmental appropriation measures, all have passed the house and seven have passed the senate and gone to the president. The remaining eight either have passed the senate and are in a senate-house conference or have not yet been considered by the senate.

Navy Probes Disappearance Of Admiral

San Francisco — The navy is investigating the death of Rear Adm. Lynne C. Quiggle who told his wife "you'd be better off a widow" just before his disappearance at sea.

Mrs. Quiggle

Quiggle, 52, vanished from the liner President Cleveland Wednesday about 800 miles off San Francisco. He apparently jumped overboard in a "fit of depression." Commodore H. D. Eham, the liner's master, told newsmen after the ship docked here yesterday.

A navy board of investigation, headed by Rear Adm. John Q. Owsley, started a formal inquiry immediately.

The admiral and his wife were returning from his tour of duty as deputy chief of staff on the joint staff of the commander of U.S. forces in Japan. He had been ordered to San Diego to become commander of amphibious group 1, Pacific fleet.

Mrs. Quiggle, the former Ann Griffin of Washington, D.C., said her husband had left the couple's cabin early in the morning saying "you'd be better off a widow" after kissing her.

She reported his disappearance and the ship was searched. Mrs. Quiggle said she had reason to believe her husband, who had been nervous and tense, may have jumped from the ship.

State's Labor Force Becomes Single Unit

Leaders Urge Laws Beneficial to Its Rank and File

Milwaukee — The Wisconsin labor movement consolidated into a single, powerful unit Thursday and then heard its officers urge a greater effort to promote laws beneficial to labor and elect friendly candidates.

George Haberman, Milwaukee, president of the Wisconsin State CIO-AFL, pledged the organization would do whatever it could to return "the honor of progressivism to the state of Wisconsin."

Haberman was president of the former states AFL which combined, after 21 years of separate activity, with the CIO to form the new organization with 262,000 members. Of the total, 176,000 were from the old AFL and 86,000 from the CIO.

"We've got to change our policies," Haberman stated as he said a more thorough-going job of labor lobbying in the legislature is necessary to make lawmakers receptive to the will of their constituents.

Former CIO President Charles Schultz of Milwaukee, vice president of the new union, said his primary goal will be to "totally mobilize" the voting strength of the members and their families.

Back Democrats
After hearing Haberman and Schultz, the 15-member committee on political education received a number of resolutions urging convention backing for Democratic candidates, including:

Gaylord Nelson, Madison, governor; Sen. William Proxmire, senator; Philo Nash, governor; Palmer Daugs, Lake Mills, state treasurer, and Chris Seraphim, Milwaukee, and John Reynolds, Green Bay, both seeking nomination as attorney general candidate.

The convention will continue at least through today.

Gas Seepage Sends City Into State of Jitters

2,500 Residents of Town in Illinois Ordered From Homes After Six Blasts

Belleville, Ill. — Liquefied gas seepage into Belleville's water main produced six explosions Thursday and kept residents in a state of jitters throughout the night.

Harried city officials haven't traced the source of the gas. About 2,500 residents were ordered from their homes for a 64-hour period after the blasts, in which four persons suffered burns. None was in serious condition.

A new alarm was sounded for residents of one street Thursday night. They were told the amount of the gas in their water supply had reached a dangerous level and were ordered not to use electricity and to turn on all outside water faucets. The alert was called off after an hour and 15 minutes.

There was no mass exodus from this city of 45,000, twelve miles southeast of St. Louis. Homes in a 50-block area were evacuated, but most residents milled about on their front lawns and in the streets until the all-clear.

Fire Chief John Wade said the gas in the water mains was butane. He said a tank of the gas might have been tapped into a water line by mistake.

One of the injured, Mrs. Alice Hasenstab, suffered burns on the face and arms when a washing machine exploded as she turned it on.

Worst Damage
Worst damage was to a home of a family of six. The family was away when a blast knocked out one brick wall and shattered windows.

Willis Abend, owner of a Belleville shop, had just stepped outside with the only other employee on duty when the shop was torn by an explosion.

Fires which followed some of the blasts were extinguished quickly.

Many residents reported gas was mingled with their water supply and escaped when they turned on taps.

Three Children Drowned While Wading in Pond

Mars, Pa. — They were just like all kids... excited about one thing one time and another thing another time...

all three were blond-haired and stuck together all the time, said Mrs. Herbert Brooks.

Her three grandchildren, William, 8; Rhonda, 7; and Michael, 6, drowned yesterday in a pond near their home in this western Pennsylvania community, about 20 miles north of Pittsburgh.

The children's parents, Mr. and Mrs. William Brooks, couldn't talk last night. They were under a doctor's care and had been given sedatives.

However, before lapsing into a state of shock, the mother told firemen the children were wading in the pond when one of them apparently fell into deeper water, dragging the others down. She said they always held hands while wading.

The children had been reported missing early yesterday afternoon. Mars firemen recovered the bodies after footprints were discovered at the edge of a dam at the pond.

Hollywood — Susan Hayward flew last night to Carrollton, Ga., to be with her husband, Eaton Chalkley, after receiving word of his sudden illness.

Couple Drops in, Porch Drops Off

Louisville, Ky. — Mr. and Mrs. Browder Wilburn dropped in on Mrs. Norvella Stuart Thursday. All three stepped onto Mrs. Stuart's back porch and dropped out together.

The porch fell two stories to the ground below. Mrs. Stuart, 32, and Wilburn, 39, further fell down a flight of basement stairs. Some of the porch accompanied them.

Mrs. Wilburn, 31, landed atop the wreckage. None was hurt seriously.

Woman Injured in Rodeo Accident

Cheyenne, Wyo. — A real saga of the old west was played before thousands of startled spectators yesterday.

Four horses bolted while pulling a stagecoach in the Cheyenne Frontier Days rodeo. One of them was dragged for two blocks and was covered with blood before the rig was stopped.

Mrs. Leora Krieger, 50, Berthoud, Colo., suffered a broken leg but 11 small children inside the stage escaped injury.

The horses were halted by Floyd Farris, an alert Cheyenne horseman who rode alongside the runaways and slowed them to a stop.

Argentina Signs New Agreement to Create Oil Production Boost

U. S., Russia Included in Huge Project

Buenos Aires — President Arthur Frondizi, long a foe of foreign participation in Argentine oil development, announced Thursday night agreements with U.S., Russian and western European companies to help increase oil production.

The foreign companies will aid Argentina's oil monopoly YPF to triple domestic production, Frondizi said. Argentina now produces about 33 million barrels of oil a year and has a perennial shortage.

To ease the current shortage, contracts were signed for the Soviet Union to deliver 7,125,000 barrels of oil by next July and Colombia to supply $15 million worth.

Lack Capital

Frondizi was elected president last February on a platform that supported the strong popular feeling against allowing foreign capital to dominate the extraction of Argentine resources. The Argentines, however, lack both the capital and technical knowhow to develop their oil fast enough to keep pace with the demand.

Frondizi conceded in a radio-television speech that he would be criticized for his decision to deal with foreign companies but he said Argentina's sovereignty would not be affected. His decision will be inflexibly defended, he warned critics.

The largest contract was signed with a group of U.S. and European companies, including the Atlas corporation, the Hidden Splendor Mining company, Petro Atlas Inc., Williams Brothers company, Mid-Continent Exploration and Ferrostal AG of Germany.

LOCALLY OWNED AND OPERATED

The 2-year-old gladioli in Mrs. John Fuhrman's garden at 942 E. Kay street, are out-doing themselves, she reports. The flowers have spikes measuring some 56 inches in height with as many as 15 buds. The bulbs cost her about a penny each last year. They didn't do so well then, but this year!

An Appleton lad, 12, finished his lunch and remarked: "I'm full."

His mother said: "Oh no, you're Jack."

His sister, 16, cracked: "I'd rather be full, that's curable."

"We Serve to Serve Again"

Selective Service Chief Says Too Many Fail Mental Exams

My old sparring partner, Lew Hershey, the gent who runs the handcuff - volunteer business, has come up with something more than a germ of a suspicion. Gen. Hershey allows that a lot of our youths beat the military call - up by "p l a y i n g dumb," since we have placed a fresh emphasis on summoning embryo atomic scientists for the basic business of hay-foot, straw-foot, and a little kitchen police if you're naughty in the sergeant's presence.

Says the doughty general, who must have more time in grade than John Edgar Hoover has put in the FBI: "Fifty per cent of those called up are listed as unfit for service. I don't understand why 20 per cent of our youths, including high school graduates, fail to pass fourth grade mental ability tests."

Laws Obsolete
Of course it's true that our draft laws are obsolete, and that nobody in his right mind would want to play soldier when there was no war to make the uniform glamorous and the idea of heroism and possible extinction intriguing. A war is a leveller, and if they yell at you maybe you ought to drop everything and go.

But from what I read, at the moment, from a recent study, fathers, worthy athletes, deserving cases and dumb Johns can beat it pretty easy, while the other kids give up good jobs in order to work for uncle at reduced wages and certainly a lack of freedom, not to mention privacy. This is again mindful of the reserve business, when they kept calling the re-treads back into the fold—men like Gerry Coleman, men like Ted Williams, who I think fought three different wars, men like a lot of guys you and I know who paid and paid and paid for the privilege of offering their lives for grabs in a succession of wars.

Certainly I have no personal complaint, because I did my time in a blue suit, and on arms and legs alone, I couldn't qualify as mascot for the Brownie division of a Girl Scout troop. Nobody needs this hulk even to preside over such intramural warfare as marshmallow toasting party. But I still would Appleton police are watching for a 92-year-old man who left a Manitowoc nursing home Thursday, saying he was coming here.

This Unique Machine Reduced five large tree stumps in the boulevard around Soldiers square parking lot to piles of chips. The work, by Tree Stump Removal Service, Oshkosh, cost the city $75 and was the first step in a city project to dress up the boulevards, a project long sought by Ald. R. P. Groh. The machine also removed some stumps on E. Calumet street. (Post-Crescent Photo)

To Your Good Health

Use Caustic Alkalis With Caution, Dr. Molner Advises

By Joseph G. Molner, M.D.

Today's letter happens to be an old one, and one which I have answered directly (although, my friends, I can't send direct answers to one out of a hundred of the specific questions that come my way). But I rather think this is something that people might like to store away in their heads for possible need. However, I hope you don't ever need it.

Dr. Molner

"Dear Dr. Molner: About three weeks ago I was using some drain cleaner, containing caustic, to clear a drain pipe. I opened a plug in the pipe and a lot of the solution gushed out. Fearing some of the spray might have gotten into my eyes, I rinsed them out with cold water and apparently suffered no ill effects. "The last few days, however, my eyes have shown a tendency to smart as they would in a heavy smog, and I am wondering if this is a result of my experience. I was told that a few drops of a solution would alleviate the irritation, but hesitate to put anything in my eyes without competent advice. — E. J. W."

The answer, with any of the caustic compounds, is to do exactly what you did: Flush with plenty of water. The more you dilute, the less damage the chemical—whatever it is—can cause. Wash it away!

In this particular instance, I feel fully certain that the experience had nothing to do with the subsequent smarting. The caustic compounds are not subtle. When they strike flesh, they burn. Caustic soda, used for so many things, including the softening of paint so you can scrape the old paint off, may come in contact with the skin for brief periods before you feel anything—but when I say brief periods, that's what I mean. I know a friend who used lye (being the commonest household caustic) to scrub the old finish off a table. He started out using rubber gloves and great care. Then he got careless and took off the gloves in order to work on some of the small crevices more easily. He didn't feel anything, so he just went ahead.

Moment Of Reckoning

He presently realized that his hands felt slippery, and his fingernails were turning as soft as wet blotting paper! I'll give him this: he did have sense enough to wash with lots of water, and he never experienced any pain.

But he would have! He would have!

The strong caustic alkalis, like caustic soda or potash, which are in most drain cleaners and some paint removers or brush-cleaners; and the caustic acids, like muriatic (hydrochloric), acetic, nitric, sulphuric, and the less common ones, must be treated with respect. Some burn so you feel them almost as soon as they hit. Some give you some minutes of leeway. If you have been spattered with them, wash them away with lots of water, at once.

At least, though, they are like the rattlesnake. You don't have to wait days and days to find out whether they have bitten you. You know it soon. So the question that started this must be answered thusly: I strongly doubt if the drain cleaner is suddenly causing harm after three weeks. Better see your doctor on this. It's some other cause; and don't rinse the eyes with some home remedy that somebody said was "good." Good for what? I don't know of anything that will be helped by the one that was suggested to you, and I'm glad you didn't use it.

Release Youth Who Took $940

Placed Under Supervision of Welfare Agency

An Appleton youth and his younger brother who broke into a supermarket and took $940 have been released to their parents.

The oldest, 17, admitted using his 12-year-old brother as a lookout during the burglary of the Park 'N' Market, 1400 N. Meade street, April 23.

The boys have been placed under the supervision of a parochial welfare agency for two years. The older boy was ordered to make restitution of $440, since $500 of the theft was recovered by police.

The older boy said he formerly worked in the store and broke into it because he had been unjustly fired. He told police he sneaked out of his bedroom about 1 o'clock in the morning and picked up some tools he had hidden earlier.

Tried Safe First
He pried open a back door of the store and at first tried to open the safe, the 17-year-old said. When he couldn't open the safe, he pried open a smaller strong box in an office in the front of the store and took all the money in the box except some pennies, police said.

The youth said he gave $200 to his mother and hid $300 in his mattress. The rest he spent, some on a trip to New York. He admitted giving $20 to a third youth who helped him count the money the next day.

The youth also has been in trouble with juvenile authorities for trying to get older persons to buy him whiskey to sell to other youths, it was reported.

Report Awaited On Refinancing

Washington — The treasury will announce late today how it fared in refinancing $161 billion of the national debt.

The federal reserve board disclosed yesterday that it took vigorous action to help insure that the treasury's efforts were successful.

The board reported it purchased more than a billion dollars of treasury certificates involved in the big refinancing. It bought these on a when-issued basis since the treasury won't pass them out until Aug. 1.

Through these large purchases, the reserve system undoubtedly reduced the amount of cash the treasury will have to pay out in this operation.

The last was issued after a former jailmate, Donald Summers, confessed to slaying the girl. Earlier this week, the state board of pardons and paroles said a lie detector test showed Summers was not the slayer.

Reinkes File $10,000 Claim Against City

Seek Damages in Son's Drowning At Erb Park Pool

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Reinkes, Sr., 1219 S. Kernan avenue, today filed a claim against the city for $10,000 damages in the drowning of their son, George, Jr., 13, at Erb park swimming pool June 28.

The Reinkes charge the "swimming pool was improperly operated and supervised by the city . . . and was so constructed and maintained . . . as to constitute a nuisance, all of which caused the drowning and death."

The boy and his brother, Jerome, 14, who was revived, slipped into water over their heads at the entrance to the pool's deep diving well, Jerome told authorities.

Ruled Accident
George, Jr., was found lying on the diving well bottom in about 9 1/2 feet of water. Jerome was pulled from a shallow water section about two feet from the diving well entrance by a lifeguard.

Coroner Bernard H. Kemps ruled the drowning an accident, but submitted a letter to the city council urging that a lifeguard be stationed at the deep water entrance.

The claim will be submitted to the city council Aug. 6.

Crippled Hiker Tries to Rob Woman Motorist

New York — Mrs. Lena Ernst was driving along Rockaway parkway in Brooklyn when she saw a man in a wheelchair thumbing a ride. She was wary of hitchhikers, but she decided she couldn't pass this one by. So she stopped. A bystander helped the man and his wheelchair into the back seat, and she drove on.

Suddenly a gun was poked against her neck and the crippled man said: "Give me your dough and you won't get hurt."

Mrs. Ernst, 38, spotted a police patrol car as she slowed for a red light.

"Help!" she screamed. "There's a cripple with a gun in the back of my car!"

Two patrolmen rushed over to the car. The man was identified as Stanley Emanuel, 36. The gun was a toy cap pistol.

He was taken to the prison ward of Kings county hospital on a charge of attempted robbery.

"Please don't tell my mother," Emanuel begged the police.

Police said he is paralyzed from the waist down by injuries received in an auto accident in 1946.

if by command," about obstacles in the way of a quick meeting on the Middle East crisis, then added:

"It goes without saying that all these hindrances cannot be taken seriously if the governments of the United States, Britain and France really want a meeting of heads of government to discuss the preservation of peace."

The government newspaper, Izvestia asserted delays are inadmissible.

"As Sen. (Hubert H.) Humphrey (D-Minn.) so graphically expressed the situation, Khrushchev has pressed the United States to the wall in such a way we dare not reply otherwise than in agreement," Izvestia said.

Bid to Nasser
In Cairo, the government-controlled press said Middle East problems cannot be discussed at a summit conference without the presence of President Nasser of the United Arab Republic.

The newspaper Al Akhbar, banned a report saying "The World Welcomes the Invitation of Nasser," as if the makeup of summit meeting participants had been agreed upon. The newspaper said Paris, London, Rome and Tokyo favored an invitation to Nasser.

Western officials have said Middle East countries concerned should be invited. That would include the U.A.R. as well as Lebanon and Jordan.

Confusion in the rush to the summit over who should take part was reflected by Japan, itself a member of the 11-nation security council.

"We don't know yet whether it means a summit meeting of just some heads of state or of all members of the council," said a Japanese foreign office spokesman.

As to Khrushchev's proposal that Arab leaders be included, the spokesman said: "We don't know which Arab leaders, although we suppose he means President Nasser."

Consequently, he said, Japan will take no definite stand on the question of a summit meeting until it gets all the answers.

In Paris, the North Atlantic council met in special session to compare reactions to Khrushchev's latest summit maneuvers.

It was the fourth such meeting of the western powers this week as Britain, France and the United States sought to keep their allies informed of the running series of notes and counternotes.

Madison Attorney Dies After Shot For Hay Fever

Madison — Atty. Dirk Janssen, 31, Madison, died in a doctor's office Thursday after receiving a shot of ragweed extraction used to relieve hay fever suffering.

Coroner Michael Mallow said the shot produced an anaphylactic shock, or excessive reaction to the shot. He added that Janssen had been receiving weekly shots for hay fever since Jan. 17. He had shown no previous reaction, the coroner reported.

Malloy added that the amount of extraction had been gradually increased.

Malloy said death was due to natural causes and that no inquest would be held.

Before graduating from the University of Wisconsin law school this year Janssen was a member of radio station WIBA's news staff and at one time was editor of a weekly newspaper at New Salem in La Crosse county. He also was a former reporter for the Rockford, Ill., Morning Star.

Driver Dies of Heart Attack in Middle of Noonday Traffic Rush

Rocky Mount, N.C. — Emmett Luther Brock, 57, of Durham, N.C., was stricken with a heart attack yesterday while driving his tractor-trailer through the thick of noonday business traffic here.

The truck rolled about 50 feet into the yard of a store and stopped without striking anyone or anything.

Brock, put in an ambulance and taken to a hospital, was dead on arrival.

Cuban Troops, Rebels Have Eight Skirmishes

Havana, Cuba — Cuban government troops and Fidel Castro's rebels engaged in eight skirmishes Thursday in eastern Cuba, an army communique said today, with casualties on both sides.

The communique did not list totals but said the fighting took place at Jigue, Limones, Baracoa, Maffo, Gran Tierra, Juaco and two isolated crossroads.

ing Iraq's seat. Abbass' credentials were signed by Fadhil J. mali, former foreign minister now in jail in Baghdad.

If the revolutionary regime is recognized, the representative at the summit level would be the premier, Brig. Gen. Abdel Karim Kassim.

Meanwhile other troublesome issues cropped up to bedevil U.N. diplomats and officials preparing for the top-level meeting.

One big question is just which Arab nations would be invited to take part.

Soviet Premier Khrushchev specified that "Arab countries concerned" should be invited but did not name them.

Israel Interested
It's an open question whether the other Arab nations in the U.N. — Yemen, Saudi Arabia, Libya and Sudan — would be invited to take part.

There is also speculation whether Israel will bid for an invitation. Foreign ministry sources in Jerusalem said yesterday there was no move so far to get invited. But the Israeli delegation at the U.N. won't be surprised if word comes through from Jerusalem to seek an invitation for Premier David Ben-Gurion. Israeli sources say they are entitled to be present at any debate on crucial Middle East issues.

In addition, President Juscelino Kubitschek of Brazil has informed Secretary General Dag Hammarskjold that Latin-American countries ought to be represented at the summit conference if it is held outside the U.N.

A meeting elsewhere is still possible, since French Premier

The U.N. already is being flooded by requests from newspapers, magazines, radio and TV stations for accreditation in order to cover the summit meeting, with the crisis issues

Priest Returns Home After Five Years as Red Chinese Captive

Pittsburgh — The Rev. Cyril Wagner is back home today after a 5-year imprisonment in red China.

The slender Franciscan priest, ill with asthma and tired from his long journey which started in Shanghai last month, returned to Pittsburgh last night.

Some 25 relatives met Father Wagner amidst showers as he stepped from an airliner at the greater Pittsburgh airport. An unidentified man approached the Roman Catholic priest and said:

"Let a good Protestant shake your hand, Father."

Newsmen questioned the 52-year-old priest, a native of nearby Sharpsburg, as he stood

The Chuters snapped their 4-game losing streak with an extra inning win over New London Wednesday night and will be out to stay on the victory trail.

This will be the first meeting between the two teams this season. An earlier contest was rained out and has not been played.

Owen Vanden Heuvel, Dick Hietpas or Bill Van Offeren will be available for hurling duty against the Appleton squad.

Over 132 Women Participate in FVGC Guest Day Activities

Kaukauna — One of the largest women's day crowds of the season turned out at Fox Valley Golf club Wednesday afternoon and evening as 132 persons were registered for local guest day.

Poker golf was played during the afternoon with prizes awarded to Mrs. Jerry Klistner in class A, Mrs. Elmer Hoffman in class B, Miss Marion Kersten in class C, Mrs. Carl Johnson in class D and Mrs. Dominic Bordini in class E.

Scavenger Hunt — Winners of special awards were Mrs. Dominic Peeters, Miss Mary Lummerding, Miss Barbara Van Handel, Mrs. Robert Grogan, Mrs. Stella Fassbender, Mrs. Art Koehn and Mrs. Jack Lamers.

A scavenger hunt was held in conjunction with golf as clues to hidden articles were given at each hole. Women searched for the hidden articles while golfing and those bringing the most items back to the clubhouse received prizes.

Plans were announced for inter-city golf next week with women to play as a threesome for special prizes. As women go out to golf they will be asked to deposit their name in boxes marked Little Chute, Kimberly - Combined Locks, and Kaukauna.

Every 15 minutes a name will be drawn from each of the three boxes and these names will then form a team. Members will be permitted to play with their regular group but only those registered for the inter-city event will be eligible for prizes.

A business meeting and financial report will be given after women's day activities next week. Mrs. Joseph Gossens will serve as program chairman for the day assisted by Mrs. Harold Feller, Mrs. Monroe Schneider, Mrs. Carl Johnson and Mrs. Joseph Regier.

No Need for Magazines to Resurrect McCarthy's Ghost, Sokolsky Says

BY GEORGE SOKOLSKY

The magazine business must be suffering from the recession or something, because here comes a magazine which advertises "A revealing, explosive document. Sen Joe McCarthy — the truth behind his sensational rise — his mysterious death." Two items down in the table of contents, I find another piece entitled, "The smell of love — you'll find B.O. can be fun." The latter article was written by a couple of doctors; the former by a usual magazine writer.

I read the McCarthy article and do not find anything new in it except the impressionistic drawing of Joe's head which makes him look like a murderer on the scaffold. That must be the sensation. As Joe only lived one life and the whole of it has been fairly well explored, it is doubtful whether much that is new can be added to it. Joe had his day and his vogue and has passed away and each year those who still regard themselves as his friends attend a Mass for his soul. Such a Mass is held in several cities and is well attended, but will naturally be decreasing as the years pass.

Knew McCarthy — I knew Joe McCarthy intimately from the start of his anti-communist career. He became interested in the subject of communist infiltration in government and he devoted himself to the subject. One may have liked or disliked McCarthy; liked or disliked his methods; but it is impossible to ignore the historic consequences of communist infiltration into governments throughout the world. This Joe did not invent.

We are facing just this problem in Syria, and in Iraq, where communists in the palace (or call them leftists, if you will) assassinated the king of Iraq.

A Sincere Group — The writer of the magazine article asserts that McCarthy's start in this field "was largely accidental." He does not know this to be true because he had no personal relationship to the senator at that or any other time. Furthermore, if he knew anything about the anti-communist movement in the United States, he would know that little about it, good or bad, was accidental. As much planning and thinking went into one side as into the other and each side was infiltrated by the other.

The anti-communists in the 1950's were an austere, devoted group of men and women who made enormous personal sacrifices for what they believed to be a cause. There were among them some crooks, fakers and screwballs, as there are in every movement, but the hard core of leadership was a sincere group, most of them former communists, some always anti-communist who were ready to die for their cause.

That they were fanatical there can be no question. Just as the communists were engaged in a conspiracy, so the anti-communists were always suspicious of others and each other because so often they found themselves either betrayed or deserted.

Joe McCarthy was deliberately brought into this movement because it was recognized that he would fight to a finish. Other senators started but lost interest as other problems obtruded themselves. Dick Nixon, at one stage, looked like Lochinvar, but it was found early in his career that while he was a man of sincerity, he was also an ambitious politician and tended to compromise. McCarthy was uncompromising and fanatical.

Denies Implication — The author of this magazine article that resurrects McCarthy's ghost implied that Joe drank himself to death. To say that Joe did not drink would be to deny that he was Irish. To say that Joe drank himself to death is untrue. He was discouraged. He regarded himself as betrayed. He particularly felt that he was betrayed by Vice President Nixon, whom he had always trusted. He talked about going into business and getting out of politics. He was absorbed in his family life.

He also suffered extraordinary pain because of his herniated diaphragm. Once I gave a little dinner for McCarthy. His pains came on. His suffering was unbelievable and that night he had to be taken to the hospital. It was his herniated diaphragm and he was operated for it.

Joe McCarthy is dead and can neither add to nor detract from the course of events. Whether resurrecting his ghost makes circulation I doubt very much. An article on what makes Zsa Zsa tick might be better business.

Kaukauna Girls Lose 1st Tilt

Menasha Team Raps Out 16 to 3 Win in Softball Loop

Kaukauna — The undefeated record of the Kaukauna recreation department sponsored Girls Softball team came to an abrupt halt Wednesday night as a Menasha recreation team pounded out a 16 to 3 win at the Kaukauna library diamond.

The loss was the first in conference action and the first in 10 straight games this year for the locals who earlier had downed Menasha 6 to 4.

Menasha lost little time breaking into the scoring column as it tallied four runs in the first inning. An error and consecutive singles by Dot Kastell, Judy Borree and Sharon Pahl enabled the losers to close the gap to 4 to 3 at the end of the first inning but thereafter Menasha took control.

The winners added three runs in the second, four in the third, two in the fourth, one in the fifth and two in the sixth. The losers meanwhile were limited to one hit the balance of the game and did not pose a serious threat. Sharon Pahl had two of the four hits for Kaukauna.

Judy Jacobson was charged with the loss as she was pounded for 19 hits. Kaukauna meanwhile was limited to four hits by Shirley Palesch.

Whither Medical Research?

There have been two important announcements recently in the field of medical research. One somewhat clarifies and the other merely confuses the question of the future of medical research in this country financed by private donations.

The first one came July 6 when the National Fund for Medical Education announced the formation of a medical research program through which funds contributed by United Funds, Community Chests, voluntary health agencies and other organizations could be channeled into basic research having to do with the health of the whole man.

The second came this week when Basil O'Connor, president of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis, announced that his organization will expand its program to attack major health problems. Initially, he said, the program will be pushed in five fields — polio, virus research, disorders of the nervous system, arthritis and birth defects.

The National Fund for Medical Education was established in 1949 by President Eisenhower, then head of Columbia university; former President Herbert Hoover; Dr. James B. Conant, former president of Harvard; and other educators and business leaders. It was chartered by Congress in 1954, similarly to the Red Cross many years previous. Its original purpose was to raise funds, principally from industry, for the financial support of the nation's 82 medical schools.

The need for a method of channeling funds into medical research has arisen in recent years because today many communities raise funds for service programs through United Fund appeals. Yet many of the national health organizations which confine their efforts to specific diseases refuse to cooperate with the United Fund drives and will not accept money raised through such drives.

The question also has arisen as to whether a better balanced program of medical research isn't needed. Many people suspect that under the separate agencies the allocation of funds is on the basis of the emotional appeal of the particular disease and the promotion of that appeal, rather than on the basis of research need. Polio is the best case in point.

Under the new medical research program a group of national medical authorities would determine the allocation of research funds for each disease. And an allocation also would be made for basic medical research, which scientists believe is the greatest need today. Most times specific developments come from programs of basic research, as the Salk vaccine did.

The purpose of the National Foundation under O'Connor's leadership is not so clear.

It has been obvious for some time that the foundation was out looking for a new "cause." Since the widespread use and success of the Salk vaccine, polio has lost some of its appeal as a money raising theme.

Under the new program announced this week the foundation will find itself in conflict with a number of other agencies. The announcement says first of all that the foundation will be concerned primarily with basic research, thus somewhat duplicating efforts of the National Fund for Medical Education.

A conflict already has developed with the Arthritis and Rheumatism Foundation. In fact the foundation's announcement was held up for some weeks while the possibilities of a merger with the ARF were discussed, and until the merger fell through. There are possible conflicts in the offing with the cerebral palsy, mental health and multiple sclerosis organizations.

Those people who are familiar with O'Connor's thinking when he was head of Red Cross under President Roosevelt and with the polio foundation since were certain that his foundation would not be dissolved. He has been the chief opponent of United Fund raising. He has been jealous of his organization's prerogatives in setting its own budgets, and financial details of the operation of his organization have been hard to come by. He has made the combination of emotional promotion and so-called nuisance methods of fund raising pay off.

It is a good question how long separate fund drives for specific diseases will continue to be supported by the public. There isn't much of a question any more that such individual methods are wasteful and unbalanced.

The new program of the National Fund for Medical Education would seem to offer a sound basis on which to build for the future. We would like to see all the private health agencies reevaluate their programs on the basis of what a combined program could accomplish.

We would frankly like to see Basil O'Connor's money raising talents combined with the potential of the National Fund for better administration of the huge amounts of money that are raised.

help prevent a further deteriorating of the Middle East and to assist in finding a road away from the dangerous point at which we find ourselves." For Hammaraskjold personally this may mean an attempt to look into Iraq although he may be refused permission to enter as he was in Hungary. For the UN there will be either the meeting of foreign ministers or heads of state within the Security Council as proposed by the United States or, if Russia opposes that, a special session of the General Assembly. Exactly what can be accomplished there is a question mark since the attitude of the Arab-African bloc and some of the more befuddled "neutralist" nations is in doubt.

Perhaps all the talk, talk, talk in the United Nations provides a cooling off period as some advocates insist. More likely it merely gives the aggressors an opportunity to stabilize their regime and wipe out opposition. At any rate the recent series of debates, resolutions and inevitable vetoes by Russia again proves that honest nations can not sit down at a table with the dishonest and expect to come out with a solution. The Soviet Union has no more business on the Security Council or in the General Assembly than would Baby Face Nelson or Al Capone in the U. S. Congress. Unfortunately its presence reflects on the UN.

Courts must deal carefully with morals offenders unless the offense involves minors or leads to murder or other violence. But Twentieth century man, sometimes going overboard on being a "social being" to the detriment of individual development, nevertheless is often afflicted with this same shrug of the shoulders attitude apparent in Heirens. Individual actions do involve other people, and responsibilities extend beyond one's own person.

There is little chance that Heirens will be set free. But every sane citizen, shocked by the statement above, should read again John Donne's famous lines written in just as individualistic a century:

No man is an Island, entire of itself . . . Any man's death diminishes me, because I am involved in Mankind; And therefore never send to know for whom the bell tolls; It tolls for thee.

I'll be Glad to Come! — And I'll Set the Date, Make Up the Guest List, Select the Program, Choose the Menu, Pick Out the Music . . .

Present Youth Program in Appleton Doesn't Meet Needs of Everyone

Editor, Post-Crescent:

Mr. Cherkasky wrote your paper (Tuesday, July 22nd) regarding Bob Bandy's flagpole sitting project to raise money for a youth center, commending and sympathizing with Bob's efforts, but questioning whether Bob and "his colleagues have thought through the problem of a youth center." He further states that Appleton has a youth center, and what is more, it has been in operation for twelve years. If this is true, then why all the clamor for one? I believe it was even an issue in our last local election.

Youth attending the Terrors Den are of junior and high school age. Mr. Cherkasky admits the Y is looking forward to the day when it can have more modern and spacious facilities. Even so, how many of the young people in our growing community could it serve? What about the young people who come out of high school and get jobs in the community, or who come from other communities to live and work here? They must be included in our youth programs. They want and need a place to go; a place to dance, visit, bowl, etc., with their friends, and to make new friends.

Mr. Cherkasky implies that anyone can participate in the Terrors Den in the YMCA youth center. However, it is a well known fact that participation in the YMCA activities (which includes the Terrors Den) is frowned upon and discouraged by more than one religious organization which may be questionable though understandable in view of the aims and goals of the YMCA. Considering these points, the YMCA is not only inadequate in facilities, but also in the services it can offer a number of young people of approximate ages and religious affiliations.

If the YMCA is sincere in its commendation and sympathy for Bob Bandy's efforts, it will get behind this project with the rest of the community. After all, no one is being asked to dig down in his pocket. A post card or phone call will do. We couldn't get the fund started much easier. And as for the publicity — Bob is sure getting it and as far as I am concerned, he is welcome to it. The price couldn't be better.

Let's all extend our efforts to one more good cause so that we can be as proud of our youth center as we are of The Memorial Hospital, Lawrence Drama and Music Center, Catholic and Lutheran High schools, etc., etc., etc.

Treatment Center for Disturbed Children May be Costly Project

BY JOHN WYNGAARD

Madison — A sample of the steady enlargement of public services and the invention of new ones that is perhaps the penalty for changing social organization and the increasing complexity of modern society is the proposal for a state treatment center for emotionally disturbed children which is now gaining momentum in legislative politics.

Considered in its fiscal terms only, there is a strong element of fantasy about it. It is hard to visualize, for example, that the legislature as it has been constituted lately will consent to the expenditure for building of such a hospital at a rate equivalent to $20,000 per child bed, and for the operation of it at the startling cost of $10,000 per year per child.

As far as this department knows, there is no public mental or medical institution in the state now operating at such high costs.

It is difficult to apprehend also that a hardpressed legislature will consent to such a program when the sponsors admit with unusual candor that they are not sure of the results. They label the whole enterprise experimental.

BUT THEN

But then the skeptic hears Sen. Kirby Hendee, an earnest and hard-headed young legislator who is chairman of a commission studying child welfare problems, talk about the human considerations in the matter.

There are more and more children in Wisconsin in trouble of the kind that existing programs cannot touch, he relates. A generation or two ago they would

Looking Backward

Factory Has New Brick Dry House

79 YEARS AGO

Quoted from the Appleton Crescent for the week of July 26, 1879.

Mr. Hill informs us that the new dry house of the Atkinson factory is now completed and in operation, working very satisfactory.

The drying is done by means of steam generated from a boiler of ample capacity that also heats the entire factory to dispense with stoves, thereby obviating any future danger from fire from their own premises.

The new dry house is brick, very large and well stocked to supply the increasing demand upon this establishment which is growing under the auspices of such a gentleman of brains as Mr. Thos. Hill. In this line of business, he is doubtless unsurpassed for practical ability and genius by any man in the west.

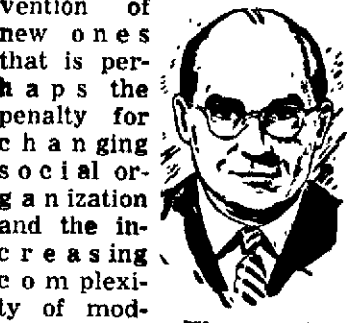

25 YEARS AGO

Grain exchanges closed that day to stabilize prices after violent sessions which culminated Thursday in the worst price collapse in many years. Limits on fluctuations were to be imposed the next day when trading resumed.

have been sent to the "woodshed," as he puts it. Perhaps it is the penalty of the age. Perhaps parents are defaulting on their care and guidance responsibilities. There are any number of possible explanations of the cause.

But there are many children of all ages who are doomed to disaster and unhappiness if they are not given expert treatment for their emotional illnesses, he goes on.

Many of them will become serious mental cases, and ultimately land in the adult mental hospitals. Others will go sour and become statistics in the state prisons or reformatories. The challenge to the legislature, said the persuasive young senator, is to "save young lives."

YET AGAIN

Yet the listener on the sidelines remembers that he has heard it all before.

Scarcely a proposal for a social welfare program expenditure or an enlargement of an institution or the creation of a new institution has not been accompanied by the claim that in the long view it will be an economy. "This sounds expensive," runs the refrain, "but it will be cheaper in the long run."

It is a nearly perfect example of the dilemma in which legislators at all levels are facing in an age when human life is becoming more difficult and complex and when the demands upon the government, real or imagined, are increasing at a swifter pace each year.

The instinct of the legislature will be to be careful. But, in the end, this program and others like it will be approved.

Sen. Hendee and his serious minded colleagues won't be offended, however, it may be hoped, if the incident recalls an anecdote of this correspondent's more bucolic days.

The bill collector called on the farmer, one autumn day, to ask why a fancy new piece of farm equipment purchased by the farmer the previous spring had not yet been paid for.

"Hasn't it been paid for?" the farmer asked, incredulously.

"Not a single payment," growled the collector.

"But that salesman told me it would pay for itself in two weeks," responded the husbandman.

Off Center Lighting Adds a Modern Note

Home Handyman's Weekly Repair Project Should Include This Job

BY JOHN O. B. WALLACE

Lighting fixtures, like old leaky roofs and bulging floor boards, need attention in the home handyman's weekend repair projects.

In older homes or apartments, where the lighting system may have been neglected for years, even the position of the fixtures may be as out of date as a hand pump in the kitchen.

In modern interiors, ceiling lighting fixtures frequently are installed off-center, directly over a chair, desk or table. But be not dismayed if all your old fixtures are carefully centered. You need not rip them out.

With track fixtures, which slide back and forth and pull up and down, you can have off-center lighting and still use the old center ceiling outlet.

When you're ready to tackle this job some Saturday morning, here are some expert tips from the American Home Lighting Institute:

Turn off all current to the outlet, remove the fuse and throw the main switch. Remove the bulb and any shade or shield on the old fixture, then loosen the canopy. This is the cup or plate used to conceal the wiring.

Lower The Canopy
Gently lower the canopy, exposing the wires; then unwind the tape holding the fixture wires to the outlet wires. This releases the fixture.

Decide where you want the track fixture placed. It can extend in any direction provided its end is no more than 18 inches from the outlet. Fasten the track to the ceiling with wood screws, driving the screws into ceiling joists for extra support. These joists usually are 16 inches apart.

Next, slide the fixture onto the track. Rollers are used to support the cord and the fixture on the track. You must splice the fixture to the cord later. Remove the metal strap and the threaded stud from the old outlet, replacing them with the new strap and stud supplied with the new fixture.

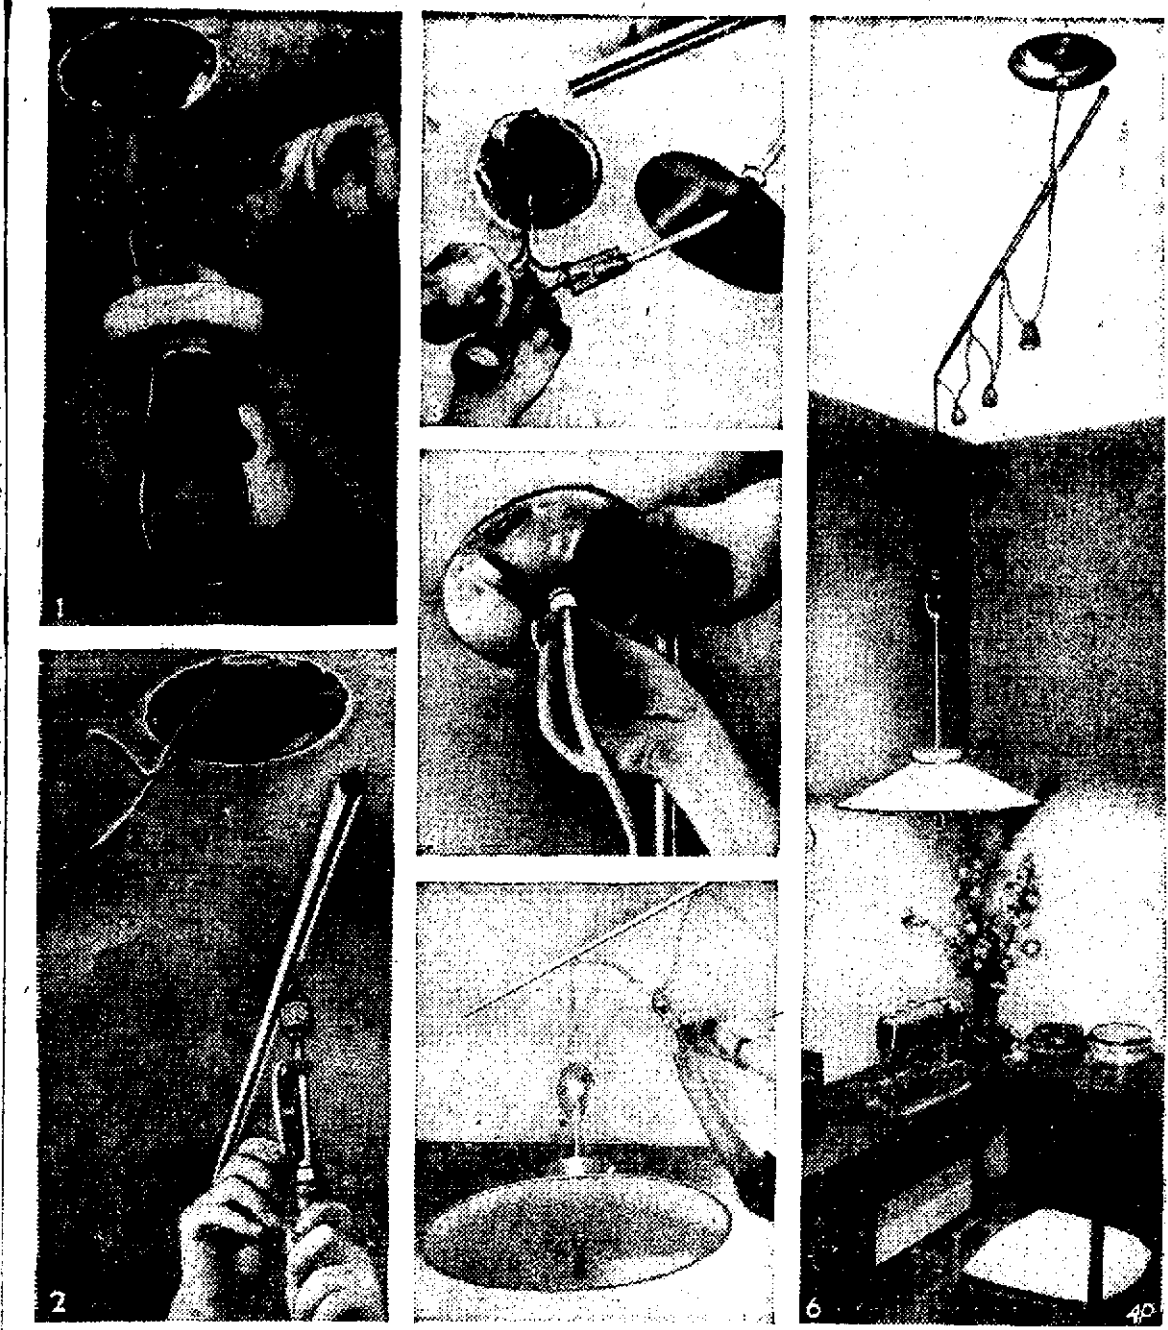

Splice the wires from the new fixture cord to the outlet wires with electrician's tape. Like wires are matched with like colored coverings — black goes with black, white with white.

A third wire may extend from the fixture cord. Usually green, this is the ground wire. Attach it to the metal strap with a machine screw which also comes with the new fixture.

Metal Strap
Before the splice is made, be sure the metal strap with threaded stud, the new canopy and the retaining cap are threaded onto the fixture cord. After making the splice, attach the mounting strap (into which the threaded stud is screwed). The strap is attached to the outlet in the same position occupied by the old strap.

Push the wires up around the outlet, and be sure the splices do not rub against any surface which might wear through and expose the wires. The new fixture's canopy now goes over the outlet.

The threaded stud should pro-

Entry Hall Coming Back Into Favor

American Women Want It Planned Into New Home

The entry hall, an indispensable part of every home in grandmother's day, is coming back strongly into favor. The streamlined entrance, with the full view into every part of the house is not wearing well with the modern American woman. The entry hall permits a woman's home to be her private castle.

Practical reasons, as well as the need for more formality, should dictate the inclusion of this essential feature by architects in every house they plan.

Most women say they want an entry hall because they object to people walking right into their living rooms, particularly when they are entertaining. Others point out that when people they don't want to invite to enter the house call, they can talk with them in the entry hall, and send them on their way without offense. Without an entry hall the uninvited guests have to be received in the living room.

Women whose houses are so planned that all traffic must go through the living room are strongly in favor of the revival of halls.

Oddly enough the American woman has been doing without an entry hall for many years, although her sisters in Europe have rigidly refused to accept houses in which the entry is directly into the living room. In England the average house has a rear as well as a front entry hall.

This demand for entry halls is part of the modern American woman's trend towards the return of formality. She is tired of being casual, tired of living in the kitchen, tired of muddy feet tramping over her clean rugs.

Better Days Ahead

Economy Rise Seen In Consumer Buying

BY SAM DAWSON
New York — Consumers who failed to be panicked by the sharp drop in industrial activity since last summer are halting the slump and laying solid ground for a new rise. They also seem to be taking the Middle East crisis in stride. After years of one crisis after another the public is growing bolder and doesn't react the way it once did.

Rising government spending is also helping turn the economy up again—if only slightly. Businessmen seem to be regaining their confidence, talking more convincingly about a fall upturn and in some cases increasing their orders for materials or semi-finished goods.

These deductions come from a report of the president's economic advisers on the indicators sighted in the April-May-June quarter, with the month of June turning in the most convincing figures.

Down Trend Reversed
In the second quarter spending for goods and services reversed a 9-month downward trend. It rose by $24 billion to reach an estimated annual rate of $428 billion.

Although this is well below the peak of $445 billion reached last summer, the upturn has significance because all but $400 million of the second quarter gain is credited to increased personal spending. Increased government spending is just getting under way.

The only major divisions of the economy continuing to decline are business spending for plant and equipment, expenditures for inventories and exports.

A drop in business expansion spending is expected during the rest of the year, but the construction industry hopes to make up for that by increased home building and growing spending on government projects.

Consumer Takes Bows
The sharp cutback in inventories seems to have slowed to a walk. The commerce department notes that recently such reductions have been mainly in finished goods, in contrast to the early days of the recession when the emphasis was on trimming working stocks. The consumer, however, is taking most of the bows. He

May Contracts For Construction Show Increase

New York — May contracts for future construction in Wisconsin amounted to $82,330,000, an increase of 19 per cent from May, 1957. F. W. Dodge corporation, construction news and marketing specialists, reported today.

According to Dodge figures, a breakdown of contracts by the major building categories in May, compared to the like month of 1957, showed: Non-residential at $33,580,000, up 30 per cent; residential at $31,272,000, down 1 per cent; and heavy engineering at $17,479,000, up 48 per cent.

The cumulative total of contracts for the first five months of 1958 amounted to $268,043,000, up 11 per cent from the like 1957 period. Cumulative total of contracts in the major construction categories showed: non-residential at $95,388,000, up at 5 per cent; residential at $88,826,000, down 17 per cent; and heavy engineering at $73,829,000, up substantially.

credited to the fact that real bargains were promoted. Most consumers were able to go right along paying off their installment debts. Many made further purchases on time, particularly for the soft goods they wanted. Family budgets may have been watched a little closer, but consumers for the most part regulated themselves reasonably — and without government controls. Even many of those who were forced to get along on unemployment benefits are reported to have kept up their monthly payments, sometimes with the assistance of understanding creditors. So, if after the summer lull, the economy is found healthy and on a moderate upturn this put on during January, February and March generally is good to the public.

Chennault Played High Role in U. S. War Years

Now on Death Bed, General's Abilities
Were Little Recognized by U. S. Public

BY JOSEPH ALSOP
Washington — In these times when greater and greater dangers are monthly born of feebleness and folly, it is very good to think about the old hero, even on his deathbed. Congress has just thought him, graciously but belatedly promoting him to the rank of lieutenant general in the U. S. Air Force. But even congress cannot really have known much about the old hero. Almost no one knows, for instance, that he was one of the originators of the modern theory of airborne operations. The army laughed because he was much, much at his theory, for cavalry was too tactlessly right about the still more popular than air-need for a balanced air force planes in the mid-1920s. The Red army offered him a rich the same, the army doctors contract to test his theory in who certified he was no longer the Soviet Union; but he re-fused it and that episode re-ceded.

Almost no one knows, either, that he was almost certainly the leading American air ace of World War II—and this is hardly surprising, because the old hero rolled up his score of 40-odd Japanese airplanes shot down before we ever got into the war. That happened after he threw him out of the air in the mid-1930s, merely operations. The army laughed because he was much, much at his theory, for cavalry was too tactlessly right about the still more popular than air-need for a balanced air force planes in the mid-1920s. The Red army offered him a rich the same, the army doctors contract to test his theory in who certified he was no longer the Soviet Union; but he re-fused it and that episode re-ceded.

One can see him now, sweating it out in the awful heat on that awful air field in Toungoo, Burma, in the pre-Pearl Harbor summer. Franklin Roosevelt had boldly given him 100 P-40s that even the beleaguered British did not want, and he had ground crews of 100 U. S. pilots of every imaginable sort. But he did not have any staff worth mentioning, or any spare parts at all, or even, for a while, any ammunition for his P40's machine guns.

Again, one can see him now, as he was in those tangled, not impress conventional-mind-ugly war years at Kunming. Electric Power Lines Won't Cut Land Value

Property Appraiser
Tells Conclusions
Of Detailed Study

Chicago — The belief that property loses value because electric power lines traverse it or are nearby, is false in the opinion of one of the nation's leading authorities on public utility valuations. Cloice D. Carl, Los Angeles appraiser, says he made numerous investigations of property devoted to many uses, and interviewed more than 1,500 buyers or sellers of property adjoining or traversed by an electric transmission line right of way. As a result, he declares, he found that "the mere presence or close proximity of the right of way did not adversely affect the market value of such properties."

"This is not to say that there are many buyers in the market who will not buy such properties, just as there are many buyers who will not purchase property situated next to a church site or near a fire station. Open Market "But there are sufficient numbers of buyers in the market at all times who will and do buy, or prefer to buy properties that adjoin a transmission line right of way, that such properties sell in the open market." And, he notes, they sell for the same prices that comparable properties situated far from such power lines are selling for at the same time. Purchasing of easement rights by a public utility, Carl explains, such as for transmission lines, is accomplished by the execution of a deed and usually the making of a lump sum payment to the property owner. This is done after the market value of the property has been determined by a professional appraiser. The rights are generally permanently purchased.

"Most rights of way . . . cover only a limited land area which is usually of a width varying from a few feet to as much as several hundred feet, but having an extended length generally over many miles and usually traversing many properties," Carl says.

Candidate Claims No Chance for Victory, But Having Good Time

Norton, Kan. — "I haven't got a chance but I'm having a wonderful time." Strange words from a man seeking the Republican nomination for governor of Kansas. But Harvey F. Crouch, a farmer and school teacher from Minneola, said he has no illusions about the outcome. "Either Clyde Reed or Fred Hall will be nominated," he said during a campaign visit here. However, he is campaigning hard, because "my candidacy gives the Republican voter who might be dissatisfied with the two main contenders a chance to register that dissatisfaction without staying away from the polls."

End of North Shore Line Called Inevitable

Milwaukee — The president of the North Shore electric railway said Wednesday abandonment of the line linking Chicago and Milwaukee was inevitable, and called the carrier "a relic of a bygone era." Charles S. Leonard, who was elevated to president of the line only 90 days ago, said continuance of the line is not economically feasible. He made the comments at a meeting of officials from Milwaukee, Racine, Kenosha and Waukegan and North Chicago, Ill. At the same time the Milwaukee Common Council decided to send a city attorney to any interstate commerce commission hearing on the abandonment with instructions to urge a "thorough-going analysis of the financial status of the railway."

Building Firms Using Concrete In New Forms

Aiming at Home
Construction as Well as Industrial

New York—In the competition among new materials in the building industry an old one—concrete—is stepping out in fresh forms.

It is challenging some of the newer curtain walls—those of glass, aluminum, stainless steel, ceramic covered steel, bronze—as well as the older supporting walls of brick, stone, wood. The new forms of concrete are aiming at the home building market as well as the commercial and industrial ones.

Precasting of ordinary concrete is one of the new methods builders are using. Architectural Record, trade publication of F. W. Dodge Corp., says only four basic pieces or panels are being used to put together the Parke-Davis warehouse and office building near San Francisco.

Reduces Costs

The process is said to cut building time and therefore costs.

Architects are also studying new types of concrete blocks and panels, one offering three dimensional patterns and another containing millions of air bubbles and weighing less than a third as much as ordinary concrete.

Maule Industries of Miami, Fla., offers shadowed blocks of conventional size with recessed triangular sides permitting the three dimensional patterns that give light and shadow effects on walls. Or they can be combined with flat surface blocks to produce sculptured patterns. The blocks are said to be fire-proof and sound absorbent.

The bubble concrete panel, called calsi-concrete, is made by the Pacific Materials Corp., of Pacific, Mo., a subsidiary of Continental Materials Corp. of Chicago.

It can be made in several densities, but currently is being made at 30 to 35 pounds per cubic foot. A panel measuring 3 1/2 inches by 20 inches by 6 feet 8 inches weighs 110 pounds. The company says an equivalent amount of regular concrete weighs 455 pounds.

Air bubbles are blended with cement, silica flour and other materials and cast in molds moving on a conveyor into a steam bath where the panels stay for 16 hours at 370 degrees Fahrenheit.

The panel can be cut, sawed and nailed, and is said to have high insulation and acoustical values. The makers say walls can be erected in 40 per cent less time and at 20 per cent less cost than conventional materials.

Winners of Bird House and Doll contests at the Edison school playground were, left to right, Bob Richards, first in birdhouses; Frank La Violette, second in birdhouses; Christy Nichols, first in dolls, and Cheryl Schmidt, second in dolls. Similar contests were held on all playgrounds. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Need Feeling Of Balance in Yard Planting

Sketches Indicate
How Proper Level
Can be Maintained

BY GEORGE E. CREED

Have you ever been bothered by a picture hanging lopsided on a wall? For some reason, things that are out of balance offend the human eye and this is true of planting arrangements as well as pictures that don't hang straight.

While a feeling of balance is a required element of any good planting, it is also one that is very often overlooked. A familiar application of balance is most easily illustrated by considering a foundation planting as related to a house. If the front of the house can be divided into two equal parts by an imaginary line (called an axis) drawn through the middle, you have a symmetrically balanced house front. A house of this type is shown in sketch A. On the other hand, if a line through the middle doesn't divide the house into equal parts, you have an unsymmetrical house, as in C.

Both Types
Though both types can and should be planted with a balanced arrangement, the approach is different. For houses such as the one shown in sketch A, arrangements are very simple. You need only repeat

Helpful Hints

Sunshine, Outside Heat Air-Conditioned House Foes

Sun is the greatest enemy of the air-conditioned house. The less direct sunlight and outside heat permitted to enter the house, the lower the cost of operating an air-conditioning system and the more satisfactory the results will be.

In drawing up plans for an air-conditioned house, architects generally use these primary design features:

Insulation is important and will save hundreds of dollars in future operating expense. An uninsulated one-story house will permit twice as much sun heat to penetrate the roof as will come through the walls and windows of all four sides combined.

Therefore, insulation is important under the roof and on the west wall. Reflection of the same weight and forms of planting on each side of the axis. Failure to consider this axis will result in planting like that shown in sketch B.

Arriving at a feeling of balance with planting is a little more difficult with houses like the one shown in sketch C. Here, a small tree has been placed at the left end of the house to balance the prominent garage wing. Sketch D shows how the location of the same tree next to the garage would tend to make the house look too heavy on the right end. Note that the garage wing, in itself, is symmetrical about an axis. This minor axis is recognized by the planting of equal masses on each side.

heat is also important for a well-insulated white roof will let in only a quarter as much heat as a dark roof without insulation.

Windows on the east and west should be shielded from the sun by sun screens, shutters or side overhangs.

West Walls
West walls should be solid. Put as few windows as possible on the west side, where even a four-foot overhang cannot keep the afternoon sun from shining in at the hottest time of the day.

Landscaping is helpful. Trees, shrubs, vines and hedges should be used to keep the sun off the roof, windows and walls.

Heat absorbent glass which will pick up 40 per cent of the sun's heat is also recommended.

Builders emphasize that it is more economical to include air conditioning in your plans for a new home than to have a system installed in a home not designed specifically for air conditioning.

Team Believes It Is First to Relay Waves Off Moon

Ft. Huachuca, Ariz. — An army-civilian team believes it may have been the first time to bounce ultra-high frequency radio-teletype waves off the moon and back to earth.

This was reported Wednesday by officials at this southeastern Arizona signal corps installation. They said this was "very probably the first time intelligence has been transmitted via ultra-high frequency waves over the nearly 500,000-mile distance from earth to the moon and back."

Glass Fronts Brighten Open Storage Shelves

Simple Operation Will Improve Appearance Of Room, Expert Says

Open storage shelves in the kitchen or dining room can be turned into attractive, functional "built-in" cabinets with the simple addition of sliding fronts of patterned glass.

According to W. R. Crawford, patterned glass specialist, the protective glass front can mean dust and dirt-free storage for foods and utility items in the kitchen while adding sparkle and brightness to the entire room.

"It is surprising how much difference glass enclosed cabinets can make to the overall appearance of a room for the amount of money it costs to enclose them," Crawford said. "Converting open shelves to sliding glass door cabinets requires only simple tools, and can easily be accomplished by the home carpenter."

To begin with, Crawford says, plane down the middle or "in-between" shelves until the extreme upper and lower shelves protrude three-fourths of an inch beyond the others. This is to allow clearance for the glass panels to slide. Then inexpensive metal tracks can be cut in the extended part of the upper and lower shelves. Pre-cut panels of patterned glass are then slid in so one extends beyond the other in length. End pieces, finished like the shelves, are attached to make the entire cabinet a tight, rigid unit.

The need for handles can be eliminated by having the glass dealer grind finger grooves in the panels when you buy them. Of if you prefer, he can drill holes in the glass to fasten conventional grips.

In the dining room where cabinets are used mainly for the display of fine silver and china, Crawford suggests making the doors of clear polished plate glass to show off these cherished family treasures to full advantage. Backing each shelf with a piece of plate glass mirror will double the appeal and beauty of every article in the cabinet.

"With sliding glass cabinet doors, much of the maintenance of regular cabinets is eliminated," Crawford points out. "Glass cannot warp or shrink, is impervious to dirt and wear, and requires only a rub with a damp cloth to return it to its original luster."

Need Only Paper, Scissors to Make Baffling Liberty Bell

BY CAPPY DICK

The Liberty Bell puzzle described as today's fun-project is fun to make. All you need is some paper and a pair of scissors. The resulting puzzle will probably baffle most of your friends.

Fold a piece of plain paper and cut a two-sided bell from it as in Figure 1. The fold of the paper should be at the top of the bell. Cut both sides of the bell at the same time. Don't cut the bells apart at the fold, but leave them attached. With pencil, draw a crack on one side of the bell.

Assemble three parts.

From another piece of paper cut the rectangle shown in Figure 2, making the slot large enough for the bell to pass through. Cut a smaller rectangle (Figure 3) with a slot big enough to go over the handle of the bell. The next step is to put the three parts together so they will look like Figure 4. First, slip one side of the bell through the slot in the big rectangle. This will be easy to do so the bell hangs down as in Figure 4. Next, slip the small rectangle into place so it will rest on top of the bell and beneath the big rectangle as in Figure 4. This is done by bringing the ends of the big rectangle together (without creasing it), creating an open end consisting of two arms of the big rectangle. Slip one of these arms through the slot in the small rectangle. Slide the small rectangle along this arm, down the closed ends of the big rectangle (which are still held together in your fingers) and along the remaining arm. Release the ends of the big rectangle, and you will see that the three pieces are now assembled as in Figure 4.

Hand the bell to a friend and challenge him to take the puzzle apart without tearing or cutting the paper. The secret is to go backward with the method by which the pieces were put together. First, remove the small rectangle by bringing together the ends of the big rectangle and sliding the small one over the arms. Remove the bell by passing one side of it through the big rectangle. Try it and see for yourself!

Three Suits Name Centennial Unit

Complaints Claim $24,000 for Injuries Received During Parade

Three suits asking $24,000 to pay for injuries received when a runaway horse crashed into a crowd watching the 1957 Appleton centennial parade have been brought against Appleton Centennial, Inc.

The centennial's insurance carrier, Traveler's Insurance company, Hartford, Conn., is studying the suits.

Suing are Roger Van Ryzin and his wife, Grace, 1824 N. Bennett street; Herbert Wickesberg and his wife, Lucille, 924 W. Kamps avenue, and Patrick Wickesberg, 6-year-old son of the Wickesbergs.

The three suits charge the centennial corporation with twofold negligence: that no inspection or inquiry was made to determine the ability of drivers to control their horses and that the persons in charge permitted a horse in a highly nervous state to enter the parade next to a band.

Mrs. Van Ryzin is seeking $10,000, claiming permanent injury from bruised and scraped legs and blood clots. Her husband asks $5,000 for medical and surgical attention, and nursing needed by his wife, plus loss of her companionship and future service.

Mrs. Wickesberg is asking $5,000 for injuries about the body, especially to her right leg and pelvis. Her husband asks $2,000 for care and services and loss of future companionship.

Seeks $2,000

Atty. Urban Van Susteren, acting for Patrick Wickesberg is seeking $2,000, claiming permanent damage from a bruised arm and other injuries to the boy's head and back.

The complaints were filed in circuit court. The complaints indicated all the persons were watching the parade from the corner of W. Wisconsin avenue and N. State street June 29, 1957. The three were taken to the hospital, treated and released after the incident.

The cases probably will not come into court before the fall term.

In all, 14 persons were hurt when horses ran into spectators at W. College avenue and Walnut street and at W. Wisconsin and N. State.

The pair is responsible for reorganizing Indonesia's personnel licensing division, department of civil aviation.

Each is receiving a living allowance, travel expenses and sickness and accident insurance from the federal government during their 12-month training period.

County Traffic Deaths Decline

Five Fatalities Recorded During First Half of '58

Traffic deaths in Outagamie county dropped to five during the first six months of 1958 compared with nine for the same period in 1957 and 10 in 1956.

Once since 1950 has the traffic death toll been as low as five, the first half of the year. That was in 1955. The highest number of deaths in the 6-month period was 11 in 1952.

A stepped-up safety campaign also has reduced injuries and property damage in the rural areas of the county, a report by Capt. Ronald Decker of the county traffic patrol shows.

Accidents Decline

The number of accidents declined from 194 in the first half of 1957 to 161 in the same period this year. Vehicles damaged dropped from 305 to 244 for the same period.

There were 119 persons injured in auto crashes through June this year compared to 169 last year. Property damage from accidents dropped about 30 percent, from $112,100 to $75,790 for the same period.

Of the five deaths in the county so far this year, two have been in rural areas and three in Kaukauna.

Coroner Bernard H. Kemps said there were three months without a traffic death so far this year. It is the first time since he was elected coroner in 1951 that this has happened.

Delay Likely in Decision on Skenandore

Governor Too Busy To Hear Report By Commissioner

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Madison — A decision on the ouster petition against Brown county Sheriff Artley Skenandore appears likely to be delayed. Herman Sachjen, the special hearing commissioner, has been unable to report to Gov. Vernon Thomson.

Sachjen said he wants to report informally to the governor, but hasn't been able to because of Thomson's heavy speaking schedule. Thomson will be equally busy next week, his office said.

Sachjen presided at the hearings last week in Green Bay when the sheriff was accused of misconduct.

Sachjen and John Potter, Wisconsin Rapids, the special counsel in the case, plan to see the governor together.

May Wait for Record

Sachjen said he is prepared to make a report before the hearing transcript is completed, but that he will wait if the executive wants the official record completed before action.

Under the law in removal proceedings, the hearing commissioner is expected to make a recommendation to the governor. The governor is not required to accept it. County officials can be removed by the governor for cause, after hearing.

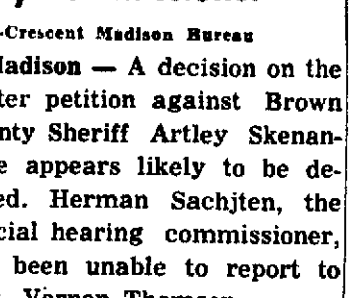

Milo Singler Attacks Right-to-Work Laws

Labor gains made under responsible leadership should not be hampered by right-to-work laws, Milo Singler, Eighth district Democratic congressional candidate, has told heads of the trades and labor council in Marinette.

Such laws, whether federal or state, are designed to wreck labor organizations, he said. Singler said labor "should clean up its own house and throw out the Dave Becks," but he called responsible, seasoned labor organizations "an asset to America and essential to our entire economy."

Community Fund Names Two More Area Chairmen

Edward Pfefferle and Jack Fumal Have been named co-chairmen of the employe payroll deduction division of the 1958 Appleton Community Fund

All employe groups and firms achieving 80 per cent participation in the 30-minute-a-month plan will be awarded permanent bronze plaques.

This year's goal is $136,132 and donations will be used to partially support eight Appleton social welfare agencies.

Eastern Wisconsin's rock-hard fields lay waiting overnight for a rain that never came.

Little more than traces of precipitation were recorded at the Wisconsin-Michigan Power company's weather station during a period when thunder-showers had been predicted.

Cooler, but still dry, air moved over the Fox Cities this morning, holding temperatures down a few degrees from Thursday's level when the high reached was 86. The overnight low was 63 and the temperature at 11 o'clock this morning was 76.

The weekend outlook calls for fair and pleasant conditions with chance of showers in the north. Weathermen gave no indication of rain for this area. Rain that did reach the state Thursday was locally heavy in the northwest, according to the Associated Press.

Cooler and drier air overspread the state early today, with nighttime minimums ranging from 52 at Shell Lake to 66 at Milwaukee.

Thursday's maximums were topped by 90 at West Allis with others ranging down to 81 at Park Falls and Phillips.

Presidio, Texas, was the hottest spot in the country Thursday with a high of 111 and Big Piney, Wyo., again was the coolest early today with 33.

Building Association
Takes Afternoon Cruise

Thirteen members of the Valley Home Builders association had an outing sponsored by Schulz Concrete Products, Inc., on Lake Winnebago Thursday afternoon.

The group rode in a 32-foot cruiser to a resort on the east shore of the lake and returned for dinner in Appleton.

Roy Griesbach is association president.

No Resuscitator Used

Oxygen and manual artificial respiration were used Thursday in an attempt to revive Hal Squier, 15-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Squier, Waverly Beach, who drowned in Lake Winnebago in front of his home.

Thursday's Post-Crescent mistakenly stated a resuscitator was used by ambulance operator Harold Linzmeier.

Oshkosh Man Dies
In Collision of
Truck and Train

Milwaukee—A 2-car collision in Manitowoc county and a truck-train crackup in Fond du Lac county today took the lives of two men and raised Wisconsin's 1958 traffic death toll to 400 compared with 438 on this day a year ago.

Frank Schneider, about 35, of Oshkosh, was killed this morning when a dump truck he was driving collided with the locomotive of a Soo Line passenger train at the Fond du Lac County Trunk Y crossing near the Dodge county line. The truck was flung 186 feet by the impact.

Authorities said skid marks indicate that Schneider spotted the train, but then seeing he couldn't stop in time, tried to beat it to the crossing. A car carrying two friends of Schneider had stopped for the train moments before the truck drove up.

Charles F. Day, 54, of Mishicot was injured fatally today when the car in which he was riding collided with another auto at the intersection of Highway 147 and a county trunk road near Larrabee, 10 miles northwest of Two Rivers.

Your Problems

Happy Days Arrived When
Grandpop Sat on Violin

BY ANN LANDERS

DEAR ANN: The letter from the 11-year-old boy who hated to practice the violin caught my eye. I didn't agree with your answer. Telling a kid to do something because it's "good for you" only makes him hate it more. I don't believe anyone should be forced to take music lessons if they don't want them. I remember the agony I suffered. I had no sign of talent. The neighbors complained. We used to fight every day. Still, the law was "Practice! Your father is paying good money for lessons and you'll take 'em whether you like it or not."

The day my grandfather sat on my violin I was the happiest kid in town. If parents like music so much why don't THEY take lessons?—EMCEE

DEAR ANN: I'm 18, single, and had a baby on May 18th. The boy refused to marry me. My friends and relatives have pounded so much advice into my head I'm a nervous wreck. I decided to give the baby to my aunt and uncle until I could make up my mind what to do. I know I can't provide a decent home for little Jerry, yet whenever I see him I go to pieces. I want so badly to take him home with me.

Last week my uncle phoned and asked when I was going to start to pay board for the baby. I was shocked. Nothing had been mentioned about money. I work in a department store and make just enough to get by. Please tell me what to do. I feel as if my head will burst.—CATHY

I don't know what kind of advice you had "pounded into your head" but you made a mistake when you gave the baby to relatives.

Unmarried mothers who have nothing to offer should put their babies up for adoption through a legitimate agency. How much better (and less painful) if you'd have made this decision before the baby came.

Some unmarried mothers have parents who will open their hearts and their homes and help to raise a fatherless child. Apparently yours were not able to do so. In such a case, it's best to arrange for adoption at birth, and not put yourself through the torture of bidding farewell to a child you've seen, held, and grown to love.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband came home loaded last night and we had a fight. He suddenly sat down at the desk and said he was going to write to Ann Landers and let the whole world know what a lousy wife and mother I was. He sealed the letter, put a stamp on the envelope and left the house. I know he mailed it.

Please, Ann, I've already been through so much with this jerk that I just couldn't take it if that letter appeared in print. Will you do me a favor and not use my full name? I think I'd jump off the bridge if that letter ever got onto the paper.—MRS. G.K.

Calm down, Toots. You've never seen a full name in this column yet—and you never will.

I've tracked down your husband's letter and it will not appear in print. You two ought to go back to the clergyman who tied the knot and get it tightened. It's slipped a good bit in the three years you've been married.

'Westward Ho' for Scouts

Camping Equipment, Baggage and food supplies were jammed into two sturdy station wagons and one small trailer by Black Hills travelers, members of the Senior Girl Scout party which left Appleton today for South Dakota. Miss Patricia Bodette, District director of the Fox River Area Girl Scout council, an adult member of the caravan, right, checks off the supply list with Scouts Lois Schloemer, Neenah, left; Janet Kreiling, Appleton, Stephanie Downs, Appleton, and Pat Allan, Neenah. The two-week trip will feature camping and cook-outs along the way. It is the first trailer tour to be sponsored by the Scout council. (Post-Crescent Photos)

Kaukauna Family's Outdoor Fireplace Rates for Cook-Outs

BY EDWARD VAN BERKEL
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

The season of outdoor grills, the smell of charcoal burning and the time when father tries his hand at cooking is upon us, and to be envied are the people who have permanent set-ups in their back yard for cooking, eating and relaxing.

One of the fortunate couples is Mr. and Mrs. John Demerath, 230 Idlewild street, Kaukauna. A large, double burner fireplace with a stone terrace overlooking a tiered garden and a back yard equipped with a large picnic table, comfortable chairs and other lawn furniture make the place ideal for the family that likes to eat out of doors.

The two burners in the large fireplace makes it possible to have fires of two sizes going at the same time. One may be extra hot for quick cooking, while the second may smolder under foods which have to be cooked slowly. An opening in the center of the fireplace serves as storage space for wood and charcoal and a recess in the chimney serves as a shelf for condiments needed while cooking.

Permanent Features
Although the charcoal grill is satisfactory for most families, it cannot compete with the advantages of a fireplace. The latter serves as a year round incinerator, is much larger and permits more diversified cooking. Does not have to be transported and stored after every use and the chimney carries the smoke away.

Another feature of the Demerath home is a large concrete and stone terrace which permits locating the picnic table far enough away from the fireplace to keep smoke from bothering persons while eating. Heat from the fires does not make visitors uncomfortable.

The Demeraths make good use of their back yard set-up, not only for home cook-outs but also for parties with neighbors and friends. Large trees help shade the area, which gets only the morning sun. Four electric lamp posts illuminate the terrace, making it possible for the family to use the facilities after dark. The family uses anti-bug lights in the lamp posts to keep mosquitoes and moths from annoying guests.

The family does not go for fancy outdoor food preparation. The main course mainly consists of wieners, hamburgers or bratwurst with beans, potato salad and other picnic dishes.

The summer is long and outdoor cooking is fun for those with a permanent setup that permits moving out at a moment's notice.

Black Hills Destination for Fox Cities Trailer Caravan

Nine Fox Cities Girl Scouts woke up this morning with the realization that today brought a long anticipated event — a trip via station wagon and trailer to the Black Hills.

Before them stretched miles of roadway, two weeks of camping and cook-outs and acres of national park grounds in the Black Hills and Badlands of South Dakota.

The caravan, which left Appleton today, comprised the excited Scouts, Miss Patricia Bodette, Appleton, district director of the Fox River Area Girl Scout council, Miss Virginia Temple, Appleton, staff member at Chalk Hills Scout Camp, plus—all the equipment, clothing and food which could be jammed into two sturdy station wagons and small trailer.

Hills, tour the Badlands, explore extensively the Hills region and hope to take in a western rodeo.

The trailer trip is the first of its type to be sponsored by the Scout council and was open to Senior Girl Scouts.

In preparation for their South Dakota jaunt, the girls attended the "Little Roundup" in June at Chalk Hills Scout camp and picked up camping "know-how" at the Senior Scout encampment at the Chalk Hill site.

If either was hiked any higher it would be on milady's shoulders. Both are so far up that John Cavanaugh even calls his sparkling collection "sky high."

There's a big difference, though, in the way bosoms and waists are treated. The waists are covered while the busts are—shall we say—not so covered. Especially for evening.

New Decolletage Daring
With skirts above the knees, the legs look as if they start immediately under the bosom. The new decolletage is so daring it's going to be hard to attract much attention to the waist. But, the bosses of "high couture" have tried.

"How are you going to like coaching third base Friday night?"

The couple quickly decided to take their vows at 2:30 this afternoon, and to fly to San Antonio for the baseball game. The bride's going-away outfit will include a baseball cap for the third base coaching job.

Pamper Children's Feet During Summer Vacation

An army may travel on its stomach, but the army of youngsters travels on its feet—all summer long. Since most children spend their vacations on the home front, they'll be treading on hard ground and hot pavements. And if you don't want your offspring to be footsore by fall, make sure they have the proper shoes for play. An important point to remember is that your children's feet are apt to grow faster during the summer—so don't wait for them to tell you their feet hurt. They won't. Stop in at your shoe store periodically and have their foot size checked. Recommended for all-day

Place Waist High

BY SUE CARDOZO
Florence, Italy.—How high is high? How far above the waist, how near to the bosom?

That is the nuance being determined at the Florence fashion shows now that Italian couture has declared itself in favor of the high demarcation line between bodice and skirt. Veneziani, whose collections received ovations last night at the historic Pitti palace, hinged her skirts about the level of the second rib.

New Fashion Trends
Veneziani's models seconded other fashion trends noted here and in the Rome showings: the high unadorned neckline with sleeveless or cupped shoulder, the back decolletage and fullness below, the flattened, foreshortened front.

Skirts are either short or long, with no middle ground between knee and floor. For evening Veneziani makes them long. And wraps to wear with them are of horizontal mink or ermine. Vertical pelts will never do.

Summer a Wonderful Season if Basic Health Rules Known, Obeyed

Time was when summer was a fearful time for mothers of young babies. Death rates were high during the hot weather season. There used to be an old fear that the "second summer" in a child's life was the most dangerous of all.

The big difference between now and times past is our knowledge of bacteria and sanitation. It was bacteria in the food that caused the greatest trouble. Food spoils easily in warm weather and babies who were fed contaminated food developed diarrhea. In those old days we didn't know how to treat diarrhea and all too often the disease proved fatal to the little patients.

Baby Foods
Nowadays there are a multitude of safe prepared baby foods, and everyone has a refrigerator so that food in the home doesn't spoil any more quickly in summer than in winter.

The first summer a baby was on the breast in the old days and the danger of the second summer was the unpasteurized milk and other unprotected food he was fed. The chief danger to our children of today with respect to food in the summer is in the meals eaten on picnics and away from home.

Food Spoils Quickly
Food spoils in 1958 just as it did in 1858. When you go on a picnic, be careful what you feed your children. A delicious potato salad kept warm for three or four hours can cause severe food poisoning. The same thing is true of a meatloaf.

For picnics take food in unopened cans—that's always safe. Or else take raw food that you cook over a campfire. Watch the milk you give your children? It's better to skip the milk on a picnic meal rather than give the youngsters milk that has been warm half the day. Or you can take along some cans of evaporated milk and a little chocolate syrup. The chocolate disguises the canned flavor and the children will drink the special treat with gusto.

Chilling, Sunburn
For the baby never, never carry milk warmed, on a picnic

Keep Car Clean
You get a good line on a woman's housekeeping when she opens the glove compartment of her car. If it is a jumbled mess, you can bet the closets in her house are the same. Actually, most owners could do with a course in "carkeeping." It would make jaunts in the family sedan—that home away from home—far more comfortable and serene. Needless to say, the first lesson calls for emptying out accumulations of trash; for brushing or vacuuming the inside; and then for orderly storage of all necessities from registration card to lap robe. How to keep the inside of the

Best to Hold Reception at Club, Hotel

BY EMILY POST

Dear Mrs. Post: Will you please tell me if it would be correct to have my wedding reception at the bridegroom's house? We live in a small apartment which is not large enough to accommodate more than a handful of people. My fiancée's family have a lovely house with a patio opening into the garden which is an ideal setting for a wedding. They are willing to let us have the reception there, but I would like to know what you think of this before saying "yes." My parents will, of course, pay all the expenses of the reception.

Answer: Under these circumstances to have the reception take place at the house of all the groom's family is not unheard of, but it would be better if the reception were to be held in the house of some member of your family or of some friend or in a country club or hotel.

Givers Vs. Nongivers

Dear Mrs. Post: At a party to which only some of the guests have taken presents, isn't it polite to put them aside and open them later rather than to open them in the presence of those who brought none and thereby cause them embarrassment?

Answer: No, it is best to open the presents that are brought and thank the givers. To put the presents aside would not hide from the nongivers the fact that some of the guests brought presents, and it would be like throwing cold water on those who were so thoughtful.

Both Choose

Dear Mrs. Post: My daughter and her fiancée have a problem they asked me to write

Flowers Stay Fresh Longer if Cut Right

Urbana.—Many home owners with flower gardens are probably wondering how to keep their flowers fresh when they're cut.

The first step begins when the flowers are cut. Always use a sharp knife, and cut the stems with a slanting motion car tidy when on the road is the next lesson. From observations, some folks manage by pitching all their rubbish out the windows. And it makes one wonder if that's what they do at home—if they despoil the home scenery and public highway, alike, with orange peels and candy papers. Large grocery bags or, better still, moisture-proof garbage bags solve the whole problem. Just tuck one in a corner of the car, use it as a wastebasket and dispose of it at a gas station or on home grounds—and carkeeping's in the bag!

Our Children Simplified Home Routine Best for Young 'Runabouts'

BY ANGELO PATRI

We take wonderful care of babies now. We can be truly proud of them and their mothers who have so carefully tended them. However, when the second, or third child arrives the runabout is just starting to get on his feet and consequently he needs a bit more looking after than he gets. When children come close together they cause a problem for their mothers.

The only thing to do is to simplify the problem. It is hard to strip the house of all the pretty things that make it attractive, but good sense calls for making things as simple and as safe as possible. These little ones want to get up off the floor.

For a long time their view of things has been on a low level, closer to the floor than any where else and being curious and intelligent, they want to see what is "up there." They are not able to get on their feet on their own power, so they catch hold of the nearest thing and pull hard. Then the accidents happen. Little tables so light that they quiver at a touch are not good supports for the runabout child. Now knowing, he pulls himself up by clutching its cover, or its edges, and over it comes on top of him, and whatever was on it strikes him. Lamps, vases, books, all come down to ruin, injure or frighten him.

Fragile Eye-Catchers

He trots into the kitchen. Mother is there and he wants to be with her. Soon his eye catches the big blue bowl sitting near the edge of the table. He clutches its edge and tugs and before his mother can rescue him and the bowl it is on the floor and its contents as well. Fortunately there was no scalding soup in it, but there might have been.

What can one do? Just the best one can under the conditions. Is there a Granny in the house? Wonderful helper. A play pen? It offers relief in crises. Can the breakables and the tumble-down things be packed for the duration? It would be a great relief to all concerned.

Nobody wants the house to "look like a barn." Nobody best one can under the conditions. Is there a Granny in the house? Wonderful helper. A play pen? It offers relief in crises. Can the breakables and the tumble-down things be packed for the duration? It would be a great relief to all concerned.

Usually, and also wants correctly the man has several rings within his means set aside and then he takes her to the jeweler and asks her which of these she prefers.

Flowers Stay Fresh Longer if Cut Right

instead of straight across. A slanting cut does not damage the plant tissue and enables the plant to take up water. The second step concerns the water in which the flowers are kept. Research has shown that flowers keep best under acid conditions. This is true regardless of temperatures. In Illinois, most water sources (tapwater in cities, wells or streams) are alkaline. Although the degree of alkalinity varies, most water supplies have a pH value of 8. This means that the water is definitely on the alkaline side.

To determine the alkalinity or acidity of water, the Central Scientific Company of Chicago markets an indicator paper under the name of Hydrion Paper. Use of this paper is a cheap and satisfactory way to determine the pH of a liquid. And it is a desirable tool for every flower gardener to have. The paper is usually sold only in bulk quantities, but smaller supplies might be available from florists or garden clubs.

If you find that your water is too alkaline for cut flowers, add some citric acid to make it more acid. How much to use depends on how alkaline the water is. Sulfuric acid can also be used, but citric acid is less caustic and is available in most drugstores.

The proper pH value for cut flowers ranges from 3 to 5. Any variation from that range will cause the flowers to dry out. Reduction of the pH of water, does not take the place of commercial preservatives that are available at all florists. But even with preservatives such flowers as roses and stocks are short lived in the home.

Study Change in Unemployment Benefit Law

Fixed Escalator Method Proposed For State Program

Post-Crescent Madison Bureau

Management of the state's huge unemployment insurance program by an escalator method is being studied by the state legislature.

Sen. Robert P. Knowles, New Richmond, chairman of a government operations study committee, disclosed that the group is exploring two fundamental changes in the law providing benefit for unemployed workmen. The changes are:

1. Extension of the duration of benefits in emergency periods, according to a pre-determined formula based upon percentage of unemployed in the state.

2. Fixing benefit payments by disbursement, according to a definite percentage of average wages — probably 50 per cent.

50 Per Cent Extension
The legislature earlier this summer temporarily extended the duration of benefits for covered employees by 50 per cent to a new maximum of 39 weeks.

Liberalization of duration provisions according to a fixed plan would make such emergency legislative acts unnecessary in the future.

Some employer interests are understood to favor this action if the extension can be pegged to a conservative unemployment index, such as 6 or 8 per cent.

Benefit amounts have fluctuated during the 22-year history of the Wisconsin program. By fixing benefits as a percentage of covered wages, they would rise or fall according to wage trends and make unnecessary change my plans about beginning the biennial struggle in the legislature. Prospects are that more sentiment will be for a 17-year-old Jo Ann Purkey of the beneficiary's average wages.

Little Known
The Knowles committee undertook study of the complex and huge job insurance program with the public explanation that too few legislators know the contents of the biennial amendments offered.

The committee plans to hold meetings with the industrial commission labor-management advisory committee which has sponsored most of the biennial amendments in the law.

It will also hold formal hearings at which the public, employers and labor organizations can be represented. There is likely to be some lively discussion about merits of automatic adjustment of duration and level of benefits.

Fund All Right
Legislative investigators, meanwhile, got the reassuring testimony of the fund administrators that it is in healthy condition in spite of record current withdrawals brought about by some unemployment and credit liberalizing amendments.

The fund has paid out over $271,000,000 in benefits during 22 years, and now has a balance of about $243,000,000. Without taking into account future tax contributions of covered employees, that balance could finance disbursements at the highest rate experienced — $40,000,000-a-year level of outgo of 1954 — for at least six years, the legislators were told.

Put another way, the fund could finance benefits at the average weekly duration thus far experienced for 368,000 claimants, or more than 43 per cent of all covered workers. This is far more than are likely to be unemployed at any one time, it was shown.

What Young People Think

Teenagers Complain of Recession, Say It Cuts Into Their Summer Jobs

BY EUGENE GILBERT

The current business recession is causing the kids in blue jeans to do a little belt tightening. For some of them, used to liberal allowances and well-paying after school jobs, it's a most unwelcome experience. By the way, "My allowance has been cut. I can't find a summer job anywhere and I may have to change my plans about beginning college in the fall. Things are rough, all right," moaned a 17-year-old Jo Ann Purkey of Belington, W. Va.

She was not alone at the fiscal wailing wall. In a nationwide survey we learned that 94 per cent of the teenagers are feeling the recession pinch in one way or other.

Spending Nipped
The recession, it appears from the survey comments, has junked many a plan for going to camp or spending the summer at the beach, and many teenagers are dipping into their savings accounts to finance college wardrobes, or other "luxuries" once regarded as necessities.

Even baby sitting isn't what it used to be. "I used to buy all my clothes with the money I earned from baby sitting," commented 15-year-old Babre Bracken of Ilion, N. Y., "but people don't go out much anymore. They can't afford it, so I don't work."

Some of the examples cited were of a far more serious nature: Father unemployed on a reduced work week; furniture, automobiles and other credit purchases reclaimed by the finance company; mortgage troubles; drastic cutbacks in family spending that extend even into menu planning, and a host of other monetary difficulties.

Still Optimistic
But for all their tales of woe, the majority of the teenagers queried were optimistic about the future. Seven out of 10 (71 per cent) were convinced the recession was temporary and only 6 per cent regarded it as a step toward another major war.

The main blow of the recession, as far as young people are concerned, seems to have been delivered at the once lucrative summer job market. More than 43 per cent of the teenagers presented, said they had altered their education plans. Some 13 per cent said the recession had altered their education plans.

In most cases, except for its effect on college plans, the shortage of summer jobs and what it used to be.

Want Government Action
Although optimistic about the future, most teenagers are not content to sit around waiting for the rainbow to appear on the financial horizon. Eighty-five per cent of them feel that somebody ought to do something about the recession and to their mind, that somebody is the government.

These teenaged economists have offered a variety of solutions. Cut taxes, cried 49 per cent. More public works, insisted 45 per cent. Decree an immediate price-wage freeze, suggested 81 per cent.

In addition, a large majority of the teenagers making suggestions felt labor and management should join forces to hold the line of prices and wages. Some 79 per cent said it would be "unfair" for labor to demand wage increases at this time.

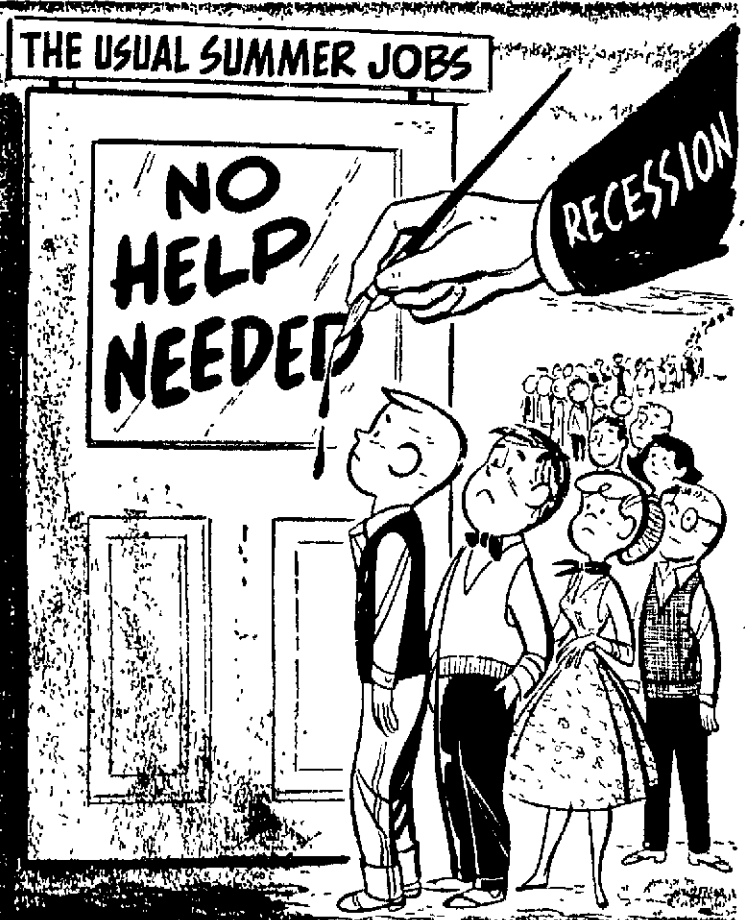

Only 12 per cent of the work-teenagers said they made any contributions to the expenses of their home. The rest, presumably, could call their paychecks their own and any layoffs were more a personal than a family tragedy.

No work. No money. Simple as that. commented 17-year-old Evelyn Girard, Hartford, Conn. Nancy Rankin, Cincinnati, also took a philosophical attitude toward her inability to find a summer job: "I'll have less money to spend on foolishness."

Hands Off
A few (14 per cent) thought the government should keep its hands off the economy and were confident everything would work out in the long run.

"People just like to complain," insisted Phillis Carizini, Chicago. "I don't believe things are as bad as they say. There aren't any bread lines."

But regardless of what steps they advocated, government action or government hands off, most teenagers — and a goodly portion of the adults too — could agree with 19-year-old Sharna Chernoff, West Hartford, Conn.: "I don't have it anymore. The dollar just isn't what it used to be."

parttime work had little effect on the overall family budget.

Only 12 per cent of the work-teenagers said they made any contributions to the expenses of their home. The rest, presumably, could call their paychecks their own and any layoffs were more a personal than a family tragedy.

On European Tour

Couple Gives City's Key To West Berlin Official

A 2-month European tour was highlighted for Mr. and Mrs. William Sense, 533 N. Center street, by a presentation of a key to Appleton and greetings from Mayor Clarence Mitchell to a West Berlin official.

The presentation on June 20 was arranged by the U. S. chamber of commerce in Berlin. In the absence of the West Berlin mayor Dr. H. E. Hirschfeld, executive secretary of the mayor's office and chief of the press and information department of the senate of Berlin, accepted the key. He also offered his private limousine and chauffeur to take the Senses back to their hotel.

Dr. Hirschfeld said, when he accepted the key, "Because of our common interests in the promotion of our democratic principles, it is things such as this that cement the bonds of friendship."

In Berlin the Senses visited the homes of German people — friends of Appleton residents, who furnished letters of introduction.

Rubble from War
In East Berlin, Sense said, there is still rubble on the sidewalk in some sections. However, the city's Stalin street is the site of a row of beautiful apartment buildings. "What the Russians did to them did well," Sense said.

Mr. and Mrs. Sense left Appleton May 5 and returned July 2 on the Queen Mary. They were among 30 people on an organized tour. They also visited England, Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, Italy, Monaco and France.

In Rome the couple joined a public audience with the Pope as he appeared for about 60 seconds outside his apartment to bless the crowd.

Impressive
"It's quite impressive, even for a non-Catholic," Sense said. "He noticed a group of Spaniards kneeling and saying 'Long live the pope.' Several men in the audience had tears in their eyes, Sense commented.

The biggest subject of ship-board conversation, however, was the Brussels fair, which the Senses attended. And the biggest single topic within the fair was the United States building and its rivalry with the Russian display. Sense said the U. S. building was beautiful and "gave a feeling of relaxation and easy living."

Mr. and Mrs. Norman F. Kempf have purchased a home at 1809 N. Superior street from Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Paschen, according to records at the office of Stephen M. Peeters, Outagamie county register of deeds.

The home is a 5-room frame structure. Mr. and Mrs. Kempf, who live at Thomson's motel, plan to move in September.

Other property transfers include: Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Brooks to Mr. and Mrs. Edwin H. Ziebell, a parcel of land in Grand Chute.

Mr. and Mrs. James T. Davis to Mr. and Mrs. Erwin E. Dutler, a parcel of land in Grand Chute.

Evon Winters and others to Frieda Krueger, a parcel of land in Vandenberg.

Fair Officials Move To Ban Public Display Of Ed Gein's Truck
Green Bay — Fair officials in northeast Wisconsin moved Thursday to ban a public display at a price of the auto, slayer-ghoul Ed Gein used to haul disinterred bodies from a cemetery to his home near Plainfield.

R. P. Planert, secretary of the Northeastern Wisconsin fair, said he would bar showing of the car if an effort is made to exhibit it at the fair next month. He said he understood it is included in a group of mid-way shows booked for fairs here and at Sturgeon Bay.

At Sturgeon Bay, G. J. Mulpien, secretary of the Door county fair, said he would probably ban the car from the grounds.

Being a Housewife and the Mother of three children doesn't stop Mrs. Mary Greenfield, 525 E. Cecil street, Neenah, from striving toward a college degree. Neenah Mother of 3 Earns Top Marks Trying for Degree Neenah — It is said the mark of a scholar is maturity. This is true in the case of Mrs. Mary Greenfield, of 525 E. Cecil street, mother of three children, who is earning top grades while attending evening classes at the University of Wisconsin's Menasha Extension center.

Mrs. Greenfield, whose children range from four to 14 years is working on her own personal 10-year plan. For the last two years she has taken one course a semester, always an evening class because of her daytime responsibilities at home. At this rate she figures it may take 10 to 15 years to earn a degree.

Courses she has earned high grades in at the Menasha center are English composition, Latin, sociology, philosophy and psychology.

Mrs. Greenfield began her college education when she lived in Sylacauga, Ala., where her husband Arthur, worked as an engineer in the Coosa River Newsprint company plant. During the seven years they lived in Alabama she took four semesters of correspondence courses from the University of Alabama Extension division.

Enrol In Fall When her husband was transferred to the Neenah area she enrolled in the Menasha extension. She plans to take all the Lloyd Jones, Oshkosh, Harold coursework she can at the extension and will enrol in a night class again next fall if one is offered that meets her needs. Otherwise she will take a day-course and employ a baby-sitter.

Since the Menasha extension offers the first two years of University work, she must look beyond that to the problem of enrolling on a campus where she can complete the last two years and receive a degree. While that problem down the road would bother many people, Mrs. Greenfield is prepared to bend with the wind. She knows that her husband is apt to be transferred and that the family may find itself in a large community where a degree rating college is located. On the other hand they may remain in Neenah. In that case she expects to complete the degree either at Lawrence college or Oshkosh State college.

But for now she is laying the basic groundwork of a degree program through UW Latin, sociology, philosophy and psychology. "The Menasha extension makes it possible for me to go on," she said.

Schedule Lamb Marketing Pool

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — A lamb marketing pool will be held from 8 o'clock to noon Tuesday morning in the Ripon stock yards.

Assisting with the day's marketing will be the Winnebago county committee including Lloyd Jones, Oshkosh, Harold Miller, Neenah, and V. W. Perntson and will enrol in a night class again next fall if one is offered that meets her needs. Otherwise she will take a day-course and employ a baby-sitter.

Prices appear to be holding well for good quality 90 pound lambs, Peroutky said. Unfinished lambs may be taken home after grading by consigner if he wishes for further feeding.

Twin Cities Set New High for Water Use

All-Time Records Attributed to Dry Weather, More Lawn Sprinkling, Higher Industry Needs

Menasha — All-time water pumpage records were set in Menasha and Neenah the last three days with part of the increased water use attributed to heavy lawn watering and extra industry needs.

In Menasha the one-day water pumpage records have been broken three days in a row. On Tuesday 4,733,000 gallons of water went through the mains, on Wednesday, 4,761,000 and on Thursday, 4,900,000.

Neenah's established record of 5,160,000 gallons on Tuesday was broken with 5,279,000 gallons Wednesday and then again Thursday when 5,346,000 gallons of water were consumed.

Big June Increase Thomas McGuire, Menasha water and light superintendent, pointed out there is no immediate prospect for rationing. Everett Westfahl, Neenah water works superintendent, on the other hand, said if the increased water usage keeps up the city's reserve will be gone in nine or 10 days and rationing may have to be enforced. Menasha's water use has increased each month this year over a similar month of a year ago. McGuire stated. The biggest increase was noted last month when 120,422,000 gallons were pumped compared to 106,649,000 in the same month in 1957.

Don't Water Gardens At Night, Agent Warns

Post-Crescent Oshkosh Bureau

Oshkosh — Watering gardens at night is asking for disease problems, says V. W. Peroutky, county agent. Watering during the day gives plants a chance to dry off before cool nights. He advises garden owners not to wait until fungus diseases begin before spraying and dusting.

Purchase was urged of a dust or spray containing Malathion or DDT for insects; sulphur or Karathion for mildew; and Captan or Parazate for leaf spot. Apply under and on top of leaves every seven to ten days, and more often if you sprinkle or if it rains, he suggested.

128 Readers Successfully Finish Program

Menasha Library's 'Our Solar System' Summer Unit Ends

Menasha — Successfully completing a journey into outer space during the "our solar system" summer reading program at the Elisha D. Smith Public Library were 128 space-minded readers. Librarian Marvin Melick reported today.

The children read four books each week over a 6-week period which ended Saturday. They completed a journey into outer space by reaching Alpha Centauri, the nearest star to the earth which is 25 million miles away.

In addition, 105 first through sixth graders almost completed their space chart certificates while another 121 ended the program with charts half completed.

354 Report

Of the 470 children who registered for the reading program, 354 reported on books. The second grade led the list with 91 reporting on books while the sixth grade was lowest with 48 reporting.

Children from St. Mary Catholic school comprised the largest group of readers with 158 participating. St. John had 59 participating, St. Patrick, 41; Butte des Morts, 27; Nicolet, 23; Clovis-Grove, 20; Jefferson, 9; Bethel Lutheran, 8; Trinity Lutheran, 6; Harrison, 2; and special education class, 1.

Solar system certificates will be given the children at their respective schools at the beginning of the school year.

Calls Israel Friction Cause

Iraqi Ex-Minister Blames Creation Of 'Synthetic State'

London — The ousted Iraqi minister to Britain charged today the "creation of the synthetic state of Israel by the western powers" as the sole cause of Middle East troubles. Tarik Al Askari was running the embassy here at the time of the revolt. The military attache and the staff seized control from Al Askari in the name of the revolutionary regime, he told a news conference.

"In dealing with the Arab states the western powers had better be careful not to repeat past mistakes," he said. "They must realize that the tragedy of the creation of the synthetic state of Israel, entailing as it did the eviction of a million Arabs from their homes, is the sole cause of all the present human suffering and misery in the Middle East today."

Al Askari said he would not comment on the actions of governments or officials. But later he said Israel should never have been created and declared:

"I accuse Harry Truman for supporting the Israelis (in 1948). I must add that President Eisenhower is considered by the Arabs as an honorable man."

New Device May Change Rural India

New Delhi — An American-designed device launched today may revolutionize the life of rural India.

It is an electric generator and pump powered by bullocks, India's main motive power for generations.

With Prime Minister Nehru looking on, a pilot unit went into operation in Khanpur village, 18 miles south of Delhi. The project was brought about under joint auspices of the Ford Foundation and India's community development ministry. It cost $5,000, but mass production is expected to cut this to $3,000.

The unit can pump water to meet the needs of villages and irrigate 100 acres. And the generator can deliver 4½ kilowatts of power.

The unit is the result of research by Leigh S. Stevens, 67, of Yemassee, S. C. He developed the idea after touring this country in 1954 as an industry member of an international study team on small industry development.

Today he heard Nehru express keen interest in the potentialities for India's 700,000 villages — the homes of more than four-fifths the population. Also present were cabinet ministers and the Ford Foundation chief in India, Dr. Douglas Ensminger.

The pilot experiment includes a power-equipped carpentry and blacksmith shop, designed to increase village production, income and employment through the use of power from the generator.

A Summer Program for Retarded children, sponsored by the Neenah-Menasha recreation departments, has included craft work, trips and other recreational activities. On Tuesday the group was given swimming lessons at the Menasha Pool with Barbara Selig conducting the instruction. (Post-Crescent Photo)

Better Living Congress

Home Called Powerful Influence on Children

What people are and what they will become is determined in the home. The home is the most powerful factor in influencing the character of young people.

The responsibility which women feel about their children was voiced over and over again during a 3-day investigation into what women want for their home, at the Congress on Better Living, held at Washington, D. C.

The report on "The Philosophy of the Home," just completed, shows that women think of their homes first in terms of their children and their upbringing. Women feel that it is up to them to form their children's spiritual, moral and cultural standards by setting their living patterns.

But the home has other spiritual functions. It offers a haven of security, a sense of belonging; it offers comfort and happiness, and it also offers a challenge — to grow as individuals secure in the knowledge of love and the feeling of belonging.

Pragmatic Meaning
To others, it has a more pragmatic significance: it provides children with freedom to play in an atmosphere of friendly welcome, freedom to have friends and a place to invite them, and freedom to work unimpeded at hobbies or creative interests.

Parents and children spend a great deal more time at home in recent years, it was indicated, and all have found as a consequence that lives are more fully lived as a family group, a unit in which each retains his or her individuality. A home is, essentially, a place where its family members can be "themselves." As one delegate put it, "a place where you can let your hair down and put it back up again."

The highly individualized feeling women have about their home was expressed by one woman who said, "I try to make the home what I want it, and not what anybody else wants. I feel if they like me, they like my home." The same feeling was expressed a different way, "The first thing I would like to find in somebody else's home, and in my own, is that as soon as you walk in the door, it should greet you with the people who live in there, their personality."

As the place where education, religion, manners, social customs and everything is coordinated, the home is the focal point of all family activities, mental, physical and spiritual.

Set Behavior
Delegates also discussed the general pattern of life which parents set for their children by their own behaviors. By reading good books, and undertaking worthwhile projects, parents can help the children to be the kind of people they would like to be.

Parents are advised to plan their activities ahead so that they can spend time with the children, mothers in the daytime, fathers in the evening and on weekends. A home should also be creative, with something always in progress whether it be decorating or hand-work.

Hardest thing to accept in a home, say the delegates, is the problem of getting used to your children's growing up. Some parents experience a sense of loss when they find their children are no longer dependent on them, while others ready themselves for the severance and adjust their lives accordingly.

The Congress on Better Living was attended by 100 American women acting as spokesmen for the nation's families.

Boy's Body Recovered, Others Being Sought In W. Virginia Flood

Spencer, W. Va. — The body of a young boy has been recovered and an undetermined number of other members of a rural Roane county family are believed to have died when their home was swept away by a flash flood last night.

Mrs. George Vandale of the Vandale funeral home here said she had been advised that "seven bodies" had been sighted in the wreckage.

She said it could not be immediately determined whether the seven included that of the boy brought here early this morning. The boy was about four or five years old.

The flood swept Grannies creek near Newton, about 35 miles southeast of here. The family believed lost was not immediately identified.

There are no telephones in the flood area, and state road commission officials said rescuers were having difficulty reaching the victims' home because of washed out bridges and roads.

The search began for the family after an unidentified passerby located the boy's body in the flooded area.

Man With Tax Service Convicted of Failing To File Own Return

Cincinnati — A book-keeper who has filed more than 50 city income tax returns for customers was convicted in municipal court yesterday on a charge of failing to file a return for himself.

Judge Daniel C. Handley fined Schamuel Schuller, 51, $100. Schuller had asked the court for more time to file his own return because he was "so busy making out returns for customers."

George Schiele, city tax commissioner, told the court "We have had more trouble with Schuller than any other person because he makes out such bad returns for his customers."

County Home Agent Gives Suggestions on Cleaning

Oshkosh — White marks from furniture may be removed by mixing boiled linseed oil, turpentine and vinegar and rubbing the marred spot. Household ammonia can be applied to a damp cloth before rubbing the mark lightly.

Turpentine, essence of peppermint, spirits of camphor or oil of wintergreen are each effective in some cases, but care should be taken to see that the spot doesn't become sticky, according to Lois Klusmeyer, county home agent.

When the mark dries, it can be smoothed by gently rubbing with a paste of powdered pumice mixed in linseed oil.

Gloss can be restored by rubbing dry with a commercial polish or a mixture of two parts raw linseed oil and one part turpentine.

Four tablespoons of ammonia or vinegar added to a gallon of warm water makes a good solution for window washing and doesn't require the rinsing and rubbing that soap and water does.

Most woodwork can be washed with a detergent or soap and water. To make the woodwork shiny, add two tablespoons of furniture polish to a quart of rinse water. Then wipe the surface dry with a soft cloth.

Use a dry, non-oily, dust mop to polish waxed floors. Even a trace of oil will soften the wax film and make dust and dirt stick to the floor.

Water spots on shellacked floors can sometimes be removed by rubbing them with a soft cloth moistened in a half and half mixture of denatured alcohol and water.

Save time in cleaning house by keeping all cleaning supplies in a basket. In this way, brushes, dust cloths, polishes and waxes can be easily carried from room to room.

Saddle soap is the best cleanser to use on leather upholstery. Just apply it with a dampened sponge or cloth and rinse off with a cloth wrung out of clean warm water. Then dry the surface and polish it with a soft cloth.

Bergstrom Safety Paper Unit Moves To Neenah Plant

Addition to be Done in August; Company Reports Earnings Decline

Neenah — The safety paper division of Bergstrom Paper Company will be moved from Waupaca to its new building here in early August. N. H. Bergstrom, company president, said today in his quarterly letter to stockholders.

He pointed out the new 45,000 square foot safety paper division building adjacent to the finishing plant south of Neenah is nearing completion. Also, the building of one of the four boiler rooms is well advanced. Its increased capacity will supply needed high pressure steam for power and manufacturing.

Net earnings for the first six months were not satisfactory by comparison with the same period of 1957, Bergstrom declared. "However, earnings from operations in the second quarter were better than the first quarter by 6.5 per cent."

Lists Earnings
He listed the first quarter earnings at $416,926 and those for the second quarter at $443,850. Net sales for the six months ending June 30 this year were $5,431,196 as compared with $5,635,835 for the same period in 1957. Net earnings per share of common stock were 96 cents for the 6-month period this year and $1.40 for the same period last year but the dividends paid on the common stock, based on 40 cents per share for both 6-month periods, were $146,374 this year and $139,455 for that period in 1957. Net earnings for the second quarter did not reflect the same improvement that gross earnings showed because of non-recurring items in other income and other charges categories, the company president indicated.

"The gain in earnings from operations in the second quarter and the improvement in the backlog of orders at the present moment seem to indicate a favorable trend."

"Actually this company did not feel until the fourth quarter of 1957 the decline felt by the paper industry much earlier. The lower level established by this decline continued with us into the second quarter of this year."

"It is interesting to note the first half year net earnings were as follows: $250,189 in 1955; $203,373 in 1956; $493,912 in 1957; and $356,355 in 1958. You will note a very substantial increase in earnings in 1958 as compared to both 1955 and 1956," he wrote.

"Earnings per share at 96 cents for the first half of 1958 show a substantial margin of almost 1 1/2 times the 40 cents paid in dividends," the company president told stockholders.

New York Mayor Says He Won't be Red Boss' Host

New York — Mayor Robert F. Wagner sees no reason to play host if Soviet Premier Nikita Khrushchev comes here for a summit conference.

"The hosts will be the federal government and the United Nations," Wagner said yesterday, "and we have nothing to do with it."

The mayor made the comment before leaving for a vacation in California.

When King Saud of Saudi Arabia came here early last year, Wagner snubbed him on rol Landskron, Sandra Meyer, the grounds that the monarch Mary Ellen Fluege, Leon Lau, was anti-Jewish, anti-Catholic and Tom Rezba.

Some consider Wagner's remarks yesterday to mean he would be no more hospitable to Khrushchev.

A city hall spokesman said later, however, that the city would be prepared to do whatever the federal government asked.

Milwaukee Signs Hortonville Pitcher Larry Huebner

Righthander to Join Cedar Rapids Club at Start of 1959 Campaign

Outstanding New London and Hortonville pitcher Larry Huebner signed a contract with the Milwaukee Braves Thursday night and will be assigned to the Braves' Class B Cedar Rapids club next season, it was announced today.

The 6-foot, 195-pound Huebner, 19, who bats and throws righthanded, was signed by Milwaukee scout Eddie Dancsak. The Braves scouted Huebner for a long time. Huebner was New London's Silver Slugger representative last year.

Larry, who has just completed his freshman year at the University of Wisconsin, has a stellar record in high school, Junior Legion, and amateur Ken, who catches for the New London Legion and is currently hitting .450.

Huebner would not reveal whether or not he received a bonus for signing but it is reliably reported that he did.

Fox Cities Slips To Fifth in Attendance

Green Bay Moves Into 4th Spot In Crowd Derby

Green Bay overtook the Fox Cities and climbed into fourth place in the only change in the otherwise static Three-I league home attendance standings through July 19.

Four of the six Three-I clubs are now above the magic figure of 1,000 — Davenport, the leader with 1,116; Cedar Rapids, with 1,107; Burlington, with 1,035; and Green Bay, with 1,008.

Davenport has been leading the league at the gate since the week of June 21. The upsurge in attendance at Green Bay is possibly a reflection of the Bays' current hot streak.

The Foxes, although they have had several bumper crop attendance nights, have had more mediocre and poor gates. Winona, which started out with one of the highest rates in the league remained at the bottom of the standings and for the first time went below 900. At that, the draw has still been better than the same franchise had at Rochester (567 average).

Folley Meets Rademacher

Former Amateur Champ Takes on Seasoned Contender

Los Angeles —(P)— Former amateur champion Pete Rademacher makes a second bid for professional boxing fame when he battles Zora Folley, top contender for the heavyweight crown, at 10 rounds or less tonight.

A companion 10-rounder features Mauro Vazquez, unbeaten Mexico City featherweight, and Enrique Aceves of Los Angeles.

The experts give Rademacher, 1956 Olympic Games champion, a good chance to score an upset.

Well-Seasoned
But Folley, 26, the pride of Chandler, Ariz., is a well-seasoned boxer with 45 pro bouts behind him. He has been whipped twice, back in 1955.

Rademacher, 29, Columbus, Ga., created quite a stir last August when, in his first fight as a professional, he took on the champion of the world, Floyd Patterson. He was knocked out in the sixth.

Whether the winner of tonight's nationally televised bout will get a crack at Patterson is something only the champion's manager, Gus D'Amato, can say. And this Cus won't say.

'Stu' Locklin Dealt To Minneapolis

Appletton's Stuart "Stu" Locklin has been traded by San Diego of the Pacific Coast league to Minneapolis of the Class AAA American association.

Outfielder Locklin, who was signed by Cleveland seven years ago, has been in only 19 Pacific Coast league games this season. Last season he hit .310 at San Diego.

Another Fox Cities area player, Marion's Bert Thiel, is a pitcher with Minneapolis.

Foxes' 12-Run Inning Dumps Davenport Into 3-1 Cellar

Senators' Officials In Stands

BY MIKE DREW
Post-Crescent Staff Writer

Apparently spurred by the arrival in town of top brass of the parent Washington Senators, Fox Cities Foxes batters went on their most explosive hitting rampage of the Three-I league season Thursday night.

The Foxes uncorked an amazing 12-run third inning in which they had nine straight hits, and went on to dump Davenport, 13-1, at Goodland field. The Foxes replaced the losers — first half champions — in fifth place.

The presence in the stands of Senator President Calvin Griffith and Nats' Farm Director Sherry Robertson seemingly didn't — or couldn't — correct the inadequacies in the staggering Fox pitching staff.

The Fox Cities collected 18 hits, their season's high total, but three Fox hurlers allowed the Dav-Sox 17 hits in blowing a 12-3 lead.

Braves Cling to Lead Despite Losing to Cards' Jones, 4-0

'Sad Sam' Hurls 4-Hitter for Eighth Victory

Milwaukee —(P)— "Sad Sam"

Jones grinned Thursday after his 4-hit pitching tripped up first place Milwaukee and gave the St. Louis Cardinals a 4-0 victory over the Braves who clung to a half game lead in the National league race.

The lead held up when rain washed out the doubleheader scheduled between the second place San Francisco Giants and Phillies at Philadelphia, but the West Coast club picked up half a game without lifting a bat.

Split Series
Only one Braves ventured as far as third base, and that was not until the ninth as Jones remained in complete control. Along the way he fanned six Braves, boosting his season total to 130, tops in both leagues.

The victory enabled the Cards to split the 4-game series with the Braves who have won 12 of 18 meetings. However, the Cards have won 4 of 5 in Milwaukee.

"I'd like to play all the rest of the games here," said Red.

Semi-Pro Tournament Resumes in Menasha

Macs Meet Marinette, LC-K Plays Oshkosh Saturday Night; Finals are Sunday Evening

Menasha—Three Fox River Valley league nines and Marinette will square off in the semi-finals of the district semi-pro baseball tournament Saturday evening at the Menasha ball park.

The host Menasha Macs will collide with Marinette at 7 o'clock and Little Chute-Kimberly and Oshkosh are matched in the 9 o'clock tilt.

The championship game will be played at 7 o'clock Sunday evening with the winner earning a berth in the state tournament at Milwaukee County stadium early next month. There will be no third place game. The semi-final losers will flip a coin to determine the third and fourth place trophy winners.

The Macs and Little Chute-Kimberly scored the most decisive wins in first round play last weekend. Menasha blanked Mort Drury and the combination team trimmed Hortonville 11-3.

Oshkosh Tops Clints
Oshkosh eked out a 3-2 decision over Clintonville and Marquette won by a 5-3 margin over Shawano.

LC-Kimberly will attempt to avenge an earlier league loss to Oshkosh, a defeat which knocked it out of a tie for the first half title. The score was 7-1.

Marinette and the Macs also are matched for the second time. The Menasha notched a 9-7 win here last month in an exhibition game.

Awards will be made to the top four teams and for team sportsmanship after the title game Sunday night. There will be individual awards for the most valuable player, top hitter and pitcher and best prospect. An all-tournament team will be announced.

Plays in BABA
For the last two summers Larry has been playing in the Badger Amateur Baseball association's Southern division. Last year playing for New London, he batted .420 and was one of the team's standout pitchers. This year he is playing for Hortonville, where he has a .370 mark to date.

Larry was a regular on the freshman baseball team at the UW.

The righthander played both football and basketball in addition to baseball in high school. He played four years and won 11 letters.

Larry has two ballplaying brothers: Wayne, who plays third base for Hortonville of the BABA and is batting .360; and

Williams Sorry For Spitting Incident Occurred In Wednesday's KC-Boxox Game

Chicago —(P)— Red Sox outfielder Ted Williams today apologized for spitting at the fans during a Red Sox-Athletic game at Kansas City Wednesday night.

A statement released by Red Sox spokesmen in Williams' name said:

"I'm sorry I did it. I was so mad at the park that I lost my temper and afterward I was sorry about it. I'm principally sorry about losing the $250."

American league President Will Harridge fined Williams $250 Thursday, saying the Red Sox star's spitting was "conduct detrimental to the best interests of baseball."

Williams spat in the general direction of booing fans when they thought he failed to show enough effort after his grounder was snagged by first baseman Harry Simpson for an unassisted putout.

Ansonia, Conn.—Steve Ward, 138, Hartford, outpointed Jim Watkins, 136, Brooklyn, 8.

Lagging Behind '57

Braves' Attendance Hits 1,015,113 for Season

Milwaukee —(P)— Lagging behind the pace of other years, attendance at Milwaukee County stadium climbed over the one million mark Thursday, and kept going until it reached a total of 1,015,113 for the season.

The Braves are presently 89,070 admissions behind the figure for 40 dates in 1957 when the club set a National league record of 2,215,000.

Eberly Confident
Braves' ticket director Bill Eberly scoffed at suggestions that the Milwaukee honey moon was over and said that despite previous predictions, he is confident the club will reach the two million mark.

He said sales for the coming weekend have been "terrific," and said it was an example of things to come.

"We've already sold 35,000 tickets" for tonight's twin bill with the Chicago Cubs," an additional 33,000 for Saturday and 35,000 more for Sunday. These are the biggest days of the year.

"The same tremendous interest promises to be carried over for the important series coming up with San Francisco next weekend," he said. After that the Pirates will be in for four games to close the current home stand. From then until the end of the season the Braves have only 18 home games remaining.

On the basis of the 31 games showing on the schedule, the Braves must average 32,250 per game to go over the two million mark. "And I'm sure we can do it," Eberly said.

Skidding Cubs Drop Fifth Straight, 4-3

Pirates Beat Los Angeles, 5-3, For 13th Time This Season

By the Associated Press
Is that really just a 2-team race in the National league. Or aren't those St. Louis Cardinals dead after all?

While there's hardly any daylight from third to seventh in the race behind Milwaukee and San Francisco, the Cardinals appear to be the only club capable of a serious challenge, even with two months to go.

Trouble is, the Cardinals, just off their second 7-game slump of the season, still have to prove they're breathing. They've won four of their last six, and trail the skidding third-place Chicago Cubs by only half a game, but they're still fourth, 6½ games back.

4-Hitter
"Sad Sam" Jones, seldom given much support, made the Cards look like winners Thursday, shutting out the Braves, 4-0, with a 4-hitter.

Rained Out
Despite a split in four games with the Cardinals, the Braves retained first place by a half game since second-place San Francisco was rained out at Philadelphia. The Cubs lost their fifth straight, 4-3, at Cincinnati. Pittsburgh whipped Los Angeles, 5-3.

The slipping Cubs, only 2½ games behind a week ago, blew a 3-2 lead when Ed Bailey rapped a 2-run homer, his seventh, off losing reliever Bill Henry (2-1).

The Pirates, just .001 ahead of Cincinnati, gained a 13-7 season edge over Los Angeles. A 4-run fourth, triggered by rookie Dick Stuart's 2-run fifth homer, did it.

In the other games COF won its ninth, a 15-4 decision over Company D, and YMCA beat the Red and Gun club on a forfeit.

The SSAC scored all of its runs in the top of the seventh as Jack Kotke smacked a 1-run homer and John Gutholt a 2-run circuit clout to tie the game at 3-3. In the bottom of the inning Ken Hammann smacked a double with a man on to win the game for Company A.

Tom Lesselyoung and Les Shebilske both smashed homers for COF. Ed Stenish hit one for the losers.

Set Dog Obedience Trials for Sunday

The Appleton Kennel club will hold another of its regular dog obedience trials Sunday at the home of H. K. Larimer, next to the St. Mary cemetery on County Trunk BB.

About 10 dogs are expected to take part in the obedience trials which run from 11 o'clock in the morning to 12:30 in the afternoon. The dogs do such obedience routines as kneeling, sitting, holding and returning to their handlers.

Club members hope to enter their dogs in a show at Manitowoc in the near future.

Foytack's Pitch Fells Ryne Duren In Yankees' 10-7 Win Over Detroit

By The Associated Press
Ryne Duren, the New York Yankees' ace reliever, finally has been plunked.

A pitch by Paul Foytack felled the controversial rookie, frequently accused of throwing at batters, in the Yankees' 10-7 victory at Detroit Thursday. He apparently wasn't seriously injured—just a bruised and cut left cheek—but he'll stay in a hospital for several days for observation.

Duren's mates call him Mr. Magoo. Casey Stengel calls him "my blind man."

Zeroses In
The rest of the American league calls the big right-hander with the thick specs less humorous things. They say he zeroes in, before rifling his high, hard and inside stuff. Duren denies he deliberately throws at anyone. He's hit two.

The pitch from Foytack, who also throws hard, came on a 2-strike, no-ball count in the ninth, after the Tigers had blown a 5-0 lead. Duren had worked two innings of perfect relief, dunking slugger Al Kaline with his first pitch.

The Yankees, blanked for six innings on one hit by Jim (No. 1) Bunning, left Detroit for Cleveland with a 3-game sweep and a 13½-game lead, their largest yet.

Baltimore whipped the Chicago White Sox, 7-3, and moved within two games of second-place Boston, rained out at Kansas City, Cleveland smacked Washington, 6-1.

Four homers counted nine runs for the Yankees. Merv Thronberry walloped a 3-run

Three Share Eastern Open Lead With 68

Baltimore—Gary Player, the successful South African invader, and two domestic golfers went into the second round of the Eastern Open tournament today sharing the lead with 4-under-par 68s.

Deadlocked with Player were Bob Rosburg, Palo Alto, Calif., and Mike Fetchick, Yonkers, N. Y.

Behind the three leaders over the rain-soaked Mt. Pleasant course came four players with 69—Art Wall Jr., Pocono Manor, Pa.; Lionel Hebert, Lafayette, La.; Wesley Ellis Jr., Ridgewood, N. J.; and Walker Luman Jr., Eglin Air Force Base, Fla.

Lionel's brother, Jay Hebert of Sanford, Fla., was among five players who posted 70. The others were Bill Ezimicki, the former hockey player from Lynfield, Mass.; Marty Furgol, Lemont, Ill.; Don Stough, York, Pa.; and John O'Donnell, pro at Mt. Pleasant.

La Crosse State Star Berzinski Joins Packers

Green Bay—Willie Berzinski, former La Crosse State star who played with the Philadelphia Eagles last season, Thursday was signed as a free agent by the Green Bay Packers of the National Football league.

Berzinski will be among a squad of 54 who report to new head coach Ray "Scooter" McLean for the opening of drills Saturday at St. Norbert college in neighboring De Pere.

The players and coaches began gathering today as they joined in a golf jamboree sponsored by the team.

Time Out with Mike Drew

Most of the players who have been demoted to clubs of lower classifications this season by the Fox Cities Foxes have been performing in excellent style in their new flannels.

An exception is Menasha's Ron Dibelius, who signed for over $20,000 with the parent Washington Senators early in June and has been unable to find himself at the plate either with the Foxes or with class C Missoula of the Pioneer league.

At last report Ron was batting .217 with Missoula after pulling up his average there from around .175. Dibelius was hitting .175 when he left the Foxes.

Center fielder Hilario "Sandy" Valdespino was batting .326 with Missoula at last report, with nine homers, five triples and 12 doubles, 24 runs batted in, and 14 stolen bases.

Teammate "Addie" Hintze, second baseman, was hitting .280. Other former Foxes at Missoula, which is in first place in the Pioneer league's second round, are pitchers Bill Felker and Bert Guehthner. They have won-loss records of 7-2 and 2-0 respectively.

Former Foxes at Washington's Class D Elmira franchise in the New York-Pennsylvania league are outfielder-infielder Julian Castro and catcher John Cuesta. Cuesta was batting .403 at last word while Castro's mark was .302.

Jim Kaat, a youngster who started the season at Missoula, has a 7-2 won-loss record and leads the Pioneer league in strikeouts. The chances of any of these players being promoted to the Foxes this season is very slight. Parent clubs are very hesitant to hurt one club to help another. And, of course, there is serious question as to whether they could maintain their present level of performance in Class B ball.

Gus Schroeder, sports editor of the Cedar Rapids Gazette, has turned up one of the most interesting—and cleanest—stories of the Three-I league season.

The incident took place in last week's league all-star game at Davenport and was perhaps the only time in professional baseball history that a pitcher left the showers late in a ballgame to go in to pitch and was nailed with the loss.

With two outs and two runners on base in the top half of the ninth inning and home-standing Davenport ahead, 4-0, All-star pitcher Ed Donnelly was showering early so as to get a quick start back to Burlington after the game.

Then, Dav-Sox center fielder Jim Lynn dropped an easy fly ball that should have been the final out. One run scored to make it 4-1. Next, Green Bay's Gene Wallace smacked a 3-run homer over the right field fence to tie the game at 4-4.

Donnelly, still wet, was hustled into his uniform and sent in to pitch the last of the ninth when he was reached for the game-winning run.

Menasha's Don Biebel, the man-about-baseball of the Chicago Cub organization, changed clubs again early this week. Biebel left Burlington of the Three-I league Monday for Fort Worth of the Texas league.

Roving utility man Biebel, who had been with the Bees just one week this time, has played with Paris, Twin Falls, Pueblo, Fort Worth and Burlington this season.

"I should have my parents stay in the Fox Cities all season," said the Foxes' Bob Van Dyke Thursday.

Bob had a bases-loaded homer Tuesday and a 2-run double and a 2-run homer Wednesday while his parents were visiting him and his wife here. Van Dyke hails from Holland, Mich.

Another of the Foxes whose parents have visited him this summer is shortstop Don Danton, a New York native.

One of the best of a number of stories they tell about Foxes' outfielder, Bob Tano, is the following.

Before a Fox Cities-Davenport game recently, Tano approached Manager Pete Suder with the request that he be given the night off because of a "headache."

Pete declined the request and started Tano in left field. Despite his ailing head, Tano proceeded to poke a single, double and triple in four trips to the plate.

Winona's well-travelled pitcher Lev Spencer, who gave up his job as interim manager of the club after three victories in three games at the helm, says he's probably the only manager in baseball history who was "fired with a 3-0 record."

Spencer, who climbed the baseball ladder as high as San Diego of the Pacific Coast league several years ago, twirled a 7-inning no-hitter for Alhambra of the Class A Eastern league the day he was sent to Winona earlier this season.

Nate Belling Jars 559 'Flower' Trio

Nate Belling's 559 and 206 scores topped the latest round of Flower Couples league bowling at Hahn's.

Other honor scores: Joe Grogorius 201, 553.

Aztec Plaza in Mexico City Gets New Look

Mexico City — The Zocalo, the large plaza originally designed by the Aztecs in the heart of the Mexican capital, is getting a new look.

Mayor Ernesto Uruchurtu says it will be the most beautiful park in the world when finished.

Massive modern bulldozers, cranes, trucks and pneumatic drills are chewing up the Aztecs' old forum grounds.

Streets Eliminated

But many of the streets, which slice through the Zocalo will be eliminated, street car lines ripped away, unsightly fountains torn up.

The entire square, about four blocks long and two long blocks wide, will be completely replanted and landscaped. A new esplanade will face the National palace, where the president has his office.

Heavy traffic which usually converges on the park already is rerouted. Streetcars and buses are banned from the area. The trees, plants and grass being removed have been transplanted to the city sports center.

Historic Buildings

Framing the park are some of the city's most historic buildings. The National palace, built by Spanish conquerors and redesigned by Emperor Maximilian, is on one side. The Metropolitan cathedral is at one end.

The Zocalo face-lifting is costing millions of pesos, and will be a climax to Uruchurtu's beautification program which has made Mexico City one of the most striking cities in the world. The mayor hopes the new Zocalo will be completed by Sept. 15, Mexico's independence day.

Popular 'Purple People Eater' Started From Teenage Riddle

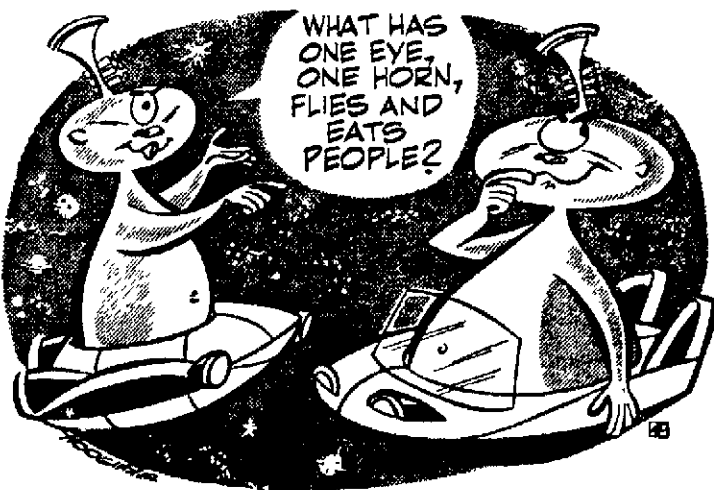

BY PAUL BUIAR

"A one-eyed, one-horned, flying people-eater." It happened in Los Angeles just before Christmas. As Gordon Gray, national field coordinator for MGM records, told the story during a recent visit to New York, the riddle was current at that moment among Los Angeles teenagers.

Purple Added Wooley liked it, said he would use it as the basis for a tune. Next day he wrote the song. He added "purple" for color and to heighten the impression of an outer-space character and he called it "Purple People Eater."

Marian Anderson and 6 Others Appointed As Delegates to UN

Washington — Senators

Thursday praised President Eisenhower's choice of Negro contralto Marian Anderson and six other new members of the United States delegation to the United Nations.

The nominations, sent to the senate Wednesday, were said by members of the senate foreign relations committee to be assured of overwhelming confirmation after committee consideration next week.

Besides Miss Anderson, the president named Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont) and Bourke

B. Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) to represent congress in the thirteenth session of the general assembly opening Sept. 16.

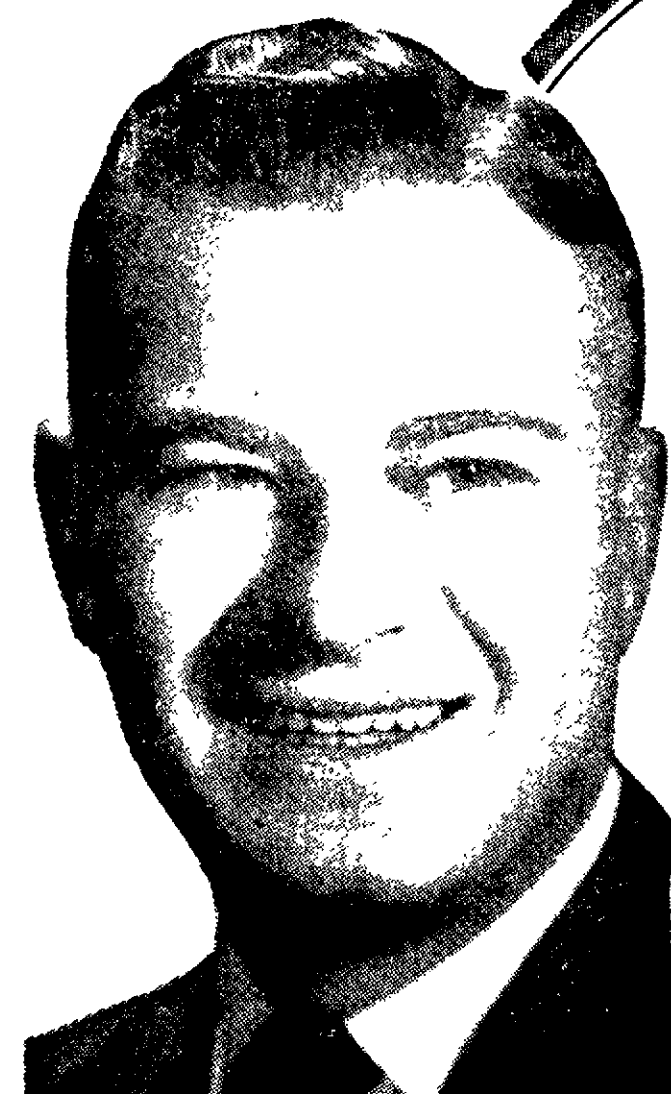

Other new members are Herman Phleger, Redwood City, Calif., attorney; George M. Harrison, president of the Brotherhood of Railway Clerks; Watson W. Wise, Tyler, Texas, business man; and Irving Salomon, Chicago, board chairman of Royal Metal Manufacturing Co.

They will serve with the three holdover members reappointed at the same time: Henry Cabot Lodge, U.S. ambassador to the U.N.; James J. Wadsworth, his deputy, and Mrs. Oswald B. Lord, who serves on the U.N. Human Rights commission.
